GROSS OUTRAGES.

How the Newfoundlanders Attack American Fishermen.

A Tale of Lawlessness and Blackmail---The Herald's Call on Mr. Evarts.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, October 5.—The Herald's St. Johns, N. F., dispatch says: The "notice of the Newfoundland authorities has been directed to some complaints made by the Gloucester fishermen of ill-treatment at the hands of the Newfoundland fisherman and an interference with the just rights of United States fishermen in British waters. The Governor of Newfoundland accordingly sent for Thomas Goss, of Torbay, the only trustworthy witness that so far can be procured. Goss acted as pilot in Conception Bay for Capt. MacEntyre of the Gloucester schooner Minnesota. Before Judge Conroy, Goss deposed that he started from Torbay Monday, 20th of June, in the capacity of pilot on the Minnesota. They reached Upper Small Point, where they had discovered that bait was plentiful. Here they commenced to operate, and while taking the captain on board their boats

THEY WERE ATTACKED

by the people on shore and furiously pelted with showers of stones. Men, women and children were engaged in the assault. The Americans immediately withdrew to their vessel, their lives being every moment imperiled. A man named Crickett offered his services to Capt. MacEntyre to procure bait if paid the sum of four dollars Crickett brought him to Spout Cove, near his own home, and for half the sum first asked the Minnesota obtained her required bait, and then, having landed the pilot, proceeded to the banks. The deposition of Goss has been transmitted by the Governor of Newfoundland to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and the other cases will be investigated and brought under imperial notice as soon as the evidence can be obtained."

The Herald, commenting upon the above dispatch, says: "This incident tells the whole story of

THESE NEWFOUNDLAND OUTRAGES.

The coasting people, without color and even pretense of law, violently attack and drive off our fishermen, because they want to force them to buy bait and fish from them, instead of taking it themselves. But the treaty gives us the right to catch fish ourselves, and the exactions of Newfoundland are simply blackmail. The shameful point in the matter is that the Newfoundland authorities, though they have known for two years that this goes on, have not interfered for the protection of our people or the prevention of utterly lawless acts by their own.

THE AUTHORITIES

have not in any case, so far as we remember, officially interfered with our fishermen, but they have tolerated on their own coasts and by their own people a degree of lawlessness which amounts to little better than piracy. We hope Secretary Evarts will be able presently to spare time from the composition of political speeches and their delivery to attend to the protection of our fishermen. We understand perfectly that great bodies like a Department of State move slowly; but the American fishermen who suffered at Fortune Bay are getting gray, and they would, we are confident, rather see themselves righted and protected in their rights than to hear the cleverest of Mr. Evarts' jokes."

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

England.

LONDON, October 5.—The sculling race between Laycock and Blackburn was won easily by the former.

PARNELL'S MISSION.

DUBLIN, October 5.—Parnell addressed a meeting of 10,000 persons at Kilkenny on Saturday last. Nine members of Parliament and fifty Catholic priests were present. Parnell announced that as soon as sufficient information had been collected the Land League would organize a great strike against paying rent on the estate of every rack-renting landlord.

FAILED.

LONDON, October 5.—Frederick Wilkinson, yarn spinner at Heywood, has failed. Liabilities $325,000.

Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, October 5.—A periodical entitled Annals of the Fatherland publishes the internal programme of the Government for the next seven years as communicated by Gen. Loris Melikoff, chief of the executive government, to the editors of the St. Petersburg press. The chief measures of the programme are to secure the stability of social institutions by giving the people free scope to avail themselves of the rights they already possess; to investigate the wants of the population, for which object Senators are already appointed; and to give the press the liberty of discussing government measures.

CHINESE QUESTION.

It is believed here the Government intends to reopen negotiations with Marquis Tseng, the Chinese Embassador.

Eastern Principalities.

LONDON, October 5.—A dispatch from Castel Nuovo says: The European fleet is assembled in Tevdo Bay, forming a line two and a half miles long, Admiral Seymour's flag ship being ten miles from Cattaro. A correspondent at Vienna hints that the negotiations between Admiral Seymour and Prince Nikita and the negotiations between the Embassadors and the Porte are quite harmonious. It is possible there will be a change of plan with a view of insuring harmony.

India.

CALCUTTA, October 5.—The heavy rains have caused disastrous floods in Rohlcund, Bengal. Many lives have been lost and the crops much injured.

Germany.

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—The Progressists are doing their utmost to strengthen the party all over country. The new laws respecting the workingmen will strengthen their ranks.

IMPERIAL BANK.

The metallic reserve of the Imperial Bank of Germany has decreased £42,350 during the past week.

France.

PARIS, October 5.—The Cote Europeene announces that the international syndicate have signed documents relative to carrying out the Panama Canal scheme.

THE WAR QUESTION.

PARIS, October 5.—The Communist, Blanqui, Pyat and Rochefort were to speak at a meeting that was to have been held at the Cirque Fernando Sunday last to protest against intervention in the East. The Government refused permission for holding the meeting on the ground that, whereas peace is in no degree imperrifled, the public would have regarded the meeting as proof of the existence of fears of war and as a government license was necessary, the government would have been held positively responsible for whatever had been uttered.

Italy.

GENOA, October 5.—Gen. Garibaldi received the Democratic leaders before landing.

THE JESUITS.

ROME, October 5.—The Italian Minister of Justice is preparing a circular to the Procurators-General, and the Minister of the Interior is preparing another to the prefects recalling into vigor the legal dispositions regarding the Jesuits which formed part of the bill for the suppression of religious orders passed in 1873, which has been allowed to fall into disuse. These measures have been taken in consequence of the French Jesuits taking refuge in Italy.

The Dominion.

ST. JOHNS, N. B., October 5.—The epizootic is prevalent in the city. There are some fatal cases.

Fire in a Leadville Mine.

DENVER, October 5.—The Republican Leadville special says a fire started at 5 o'clock yesterday morning in the shaft-house of the old Vulcan snaft in the Chrysolite mine. It was caused by a sick miner dropping a candle. The building was consumed, and the burning debris fell into the shaft, setting it afire. The Vulcan connects with the Chrysolite, Little Chief, Am. Climax and Little Pittsburg mines by levels and at the depth of 120 feet, all of which filled with carbonic acid and smoke and drove the men from their work of constructing bulkheads 600 feet away, twelve men were overcome by the smoke and barely saved their lives. After great trouble the bulk heads were built preventing the fire from spreading, and the flames are now confined to a radius of thirty feet from the Vulcan shaft and completely under control. All the shafts are hermetically closed to exclude draughts, and will remain so far four days. Work will be suspended in all the mines for a week and perhaps longer. Nobody is seriously hurt. Damage about $20,000, caused by the delay of the work. All the levels and drifts are full of gas.

A New Steamer.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, October 5.—A new and beautiful steamer—St. Jacobs Oil—from up the river has arrived here upon her mission of advertising the great German remedy all over the West. She is pronounced Queen of the Western Waters, and her advent alone will interest any community in her mission. Her crew will spend the next few years in the great work of advertising this remedy, which is already so wonderfully endorsed.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

An Unbiased Estimate of the Democratic Prospects.

Inwardness of the Political Battle--Hancock's Chances.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, October 5.—No sensible Democrat can deny that the political situation at this date is not so favorable to Democratic prospects as it was two or three weeks ago. The result of the Maine election undoubtedly was to drive the Republican leaders to the energy of despair. At no political election before have they succeeded in raising so much money. Immediately after the election in Maine they deliberately, methodically and purposely went to work to create a scare among the business men and manufacturers of the country. They are trying to make as much capital as possible out of the Revenue Reform plank of the Democratic platform. Conkling, Blaine and other leaders have made deliberate speeches charging that Democratic success meant an utter disarrangement of the tariff, thus endeavoring to influence the manufacturer and his workmen. The result is that they have succeeded in scaring some of the business men. In addition to this the Republican merchants, manufacturers, monopolists and millionaires have never before contributed so liberally as they have done now. It is unquestionable and beyond dispute that the contributions to the Republican campaign fund have been larger than ever heretofore. Everything now depends upon the election in Ohio and Indiana next Tuesday. If the election could have taken place a week ago Ohio would have gone Democratic beyond a doubt. But with this new issue on the tariff and the expected scare among the business men, manufacturers and their employes it is believed the Republicans will carry Ohio. The only question is about Indiana. If Indiana should go Democratic by ever so small a majority next Tuesday, there is no doubt about New York giving a majority for Hancock. New York itself, if there were no October election, is overwhelmingly Democratic. All indications point to a much larger majority than for Tilden. The cities of New York and Brooklyn will give Hancock a majority of not less than 85,000 to 95,000—a majority which it is utterly impossible for the State to overcome, so that the election of Hancock in spite of the enormous amount of money which the Republicans are now raising and sending to Indiana, which is estimated to be not less than half a million, is looked for with great confidence by the Democratic managers. Of course the importance of Indiana should not be denied. If the Hoosier State should go Democratic even by ever so small a majority it ensures the election of Hancock. Senator Barnum has gone to Indiana to see what can be done to counteract the influence of the enormous sums of money used by the Republicans. Ex-Senator Dorsey of Arkansas is the distributing agent for the Republicans. At the Democratic headquarters here great disgust prevails and everybody is damning English for his miserliness and stinginess. It is a fact that he has refused to contribute any funds to the campaign fund.

GRAND DEMOCRATIC RALLY.

The Soldiers' and Sailors' Reunion at Indianapolis.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., October 5.—The procession, which was the feature of the Democratic State rally of ex-soldiers and sailors, was a grand success. It was fifty-five minutes in passing a given point. It was noticeable for the solid body of men that composed it, marching in most cases four abreast. There were also many wagon leads of girls dressed in colors and with banners and wreaths. A ship of state manned by a full crew was an attractive feature. The wagons from the Landers farm attracted much attention. Whereever Landers name appeared it was greeted with cheers. The day is beautiful and there are a great number of people in the city. The afternoon is taken up with speech-making. To-night there will be a torchlight procession.

POLICING THE STATE.

The Democratic State Committee is in session to-day. It has been determined to thoroughly police the State with a private detective force to watch Dudley's deputy marshals.

SOLD OUT.

Gen. Weaver Said to be Working for the Republicans for $25,000.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, October 5.—A Washington special to the Star says: "D. D. Lum, formerly assistant secretary of the National Greenback-Labor Committee, arrived here from New York to-day. He has in his possession a letter purporting to have been written by Marshall Jewell, requesting him to come to New York to hold a consultation. Lum says the object of the consultation was to secure the co-operation of the Greenback leaders with the Republicans. He stoutly adheres to his charges that Gen. Weaver, the Greenback Presidential candidate, has sold out to the Republicans, alleging that Weaver has received from Jewell $10,000 of $25,000 promised him for deserting the party in the interest of the Republicans. Lum's statements are pronounced false by the Greenbackers here."

The Presidential Party.

PORTLAND, OREGON, October 5.—The President and party to-day left Vancouvers on the steamer Wide West, and proceeded up the Columbia River to Dalles. Along the river the residents greeted the party in a cordial manner. At Cascades the President was greeted by the Mayor and Common Council of Dalles.

Run Over and Killed.

MEMPHIS, TENN., October 5.—Thos. J. Hill, son of J. M. Hill, a prominent merchant of this city, was ran over and killed by an outgoing train on the Charleston Railroad this morning.

Resigned.

NEW YORK, October 5.—John A. Sleicher, for the past four years agent of the New York State Associated Press, has resigned to accept a responsible position on the Denver Tribune.

Sentenced to be Hung.

ELMIRA, N. Y., October 5.—Jos. Abbott, on trial for the murder of a fellow convict at the reformatory, was found guilty and sentenced to be hanged on the 19th of November.

Smith the Oarsman.

HALIFAX, October 5.—Warren Smith leaves on the 12th to contest in the race on the Thames for the American purse.

Marine.

NEW YORK, October 5.—Arrived: State of Alabama, from Glasgow.

TO-NIGHT.

The Crowds and the Bunting Which Cover the Streets.

How St. Louis is Welcoming the Veiled Prophets.

It is a fact pretty generally understood that there is going to be "doin's" in St. Louis to-night. A procession has been spoken of, and there has been some talk about a ball. Naturally the people have become rather excited about these predictions and rumors, and as the reports have spread into the country round about there has been an influx of our country cousins into town, and taking one consideration with another, the streets, the hotels and the private houses, the highways and the byways, the stores and warehouses, the churches and the theaters—every available foot of space within the corporate limits of the town is just now black with people. Strange faces flood every familiar place about the city. The St. Louisan has taken a back seat, and the non-St. Louisan is omnipresent, omniprevalent. Such throngs have never before been seen in the town. Cheap excursion rates have done much to bring them here; the attractions of the town have done even more. But the result is something tremendous. Great crowds of people, stream purposelessly along the streets, and the home-body gets into the currents and drifts idly hither and thither, as though he, too, were a pilgrim and a stranger and could tarry and could tarry but a night. Everything is examined by the inquiring Granger. Sights which to the urban eye have grown infinitely flat, the Granger transfigures into small circuses by themselves. Every window, no matter how inartistic may be its decorations, nor how old its wares, catches him with his glittering eye and holds him spell-bound, and it is a well known fact that one man stopping will collect a crowd. At the restaurants there is possibly more jam than anywhere else in town, the jam being more devouring than devoured. It is a matter of impossibility for one to get a seat at a table without waiting one's turn, and in fact the whole burg seems to be turned into a colossal barber shop, in which nothing can be done until the Fates cry "Next." How this tremendous mass of people is housed and fed is a question which only the units can answer. All that can be affirmed is that if these people were transported bodily to Nesica it would not be so easy to revictual it as it was during the Russo-Turkish difference.

The Decorations.

Shut your eyes for a second or two after looking up-street or down, and the dead gold and blue and red will live on your retina. In fact, by this time the atmosphere has a haze of red, yellow and blue in it, and everything in doors and out seems streaked with the popular colors. From the dome of the Court-house, the City Hall, the Four Courts, the Insane Asylum and the City Hospital the new flag floats; and, in fact, everywhere that bunting waves proves that for a season Uncle Sam was abdicated for the mysterious and dark Ukel Zam who reigns over us all with a mild and beneficent rule. The gayest displays are made along the line of the proposed march this evening, but the decorations are by no means confined to any place or any grade. In the wilds of the Patch and in Lucas Place, along Clabber Alley and out Olive and Pine, every one, without regard to age, sex or previous condition of servitude, has hung out his or her banner upon the outer wall and sworn allegiance to the V. P. There is no occult connection, by the way, between the V. P. and the R. S. V. P., which some fine-haired people append to their invitations. The most bunting is displayed along Fifth street, where every house flutters with thousands of little bannerets and long ribband-like strips oyed with prophetic hues Saml. C. Davis & Co., A. Frank & Son, Kramer, Gross & Co. are specially well covered. But any effort to describe individual decorations would need an eight-page supplement and an increased staff. The streets speak for themselves. Such a display was never seen before in St. Louis.

At the Union Depot.

The scene at this point was exceedingly busy and the capacity of the building and accommodations was never so greatly taxed since the building, and it was found very deficient in every point of affording comfort for travelers.

From 6 o'clock this morning it was a task to move from place to place on the platform, so dense was the crowd. As the trains pulled into the yards a crush ensued, and this state of affairs continued until noon, when nearly all the trains had arrived. The following extra trains were run in addition to the regulars: Missouri Pacific, four extras; Chicago and Alton, four extras; Wabash, 2; Indianapolis and St. Louis, 3; Louisville and Nashville, 2; Cairo Short Line, 2; Iron Mountain, 2. One train on the Missouri Pacific had upwards of 650 passengers on board. The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy train, which arrived at the depot at 10:50 consisted of seventeen coaches, every one of which was packed, the aisles and space in the front and rear portion of the cars being crowded with standing passengers. As soon as the passengers disembarked from one train it was run off to make room at the platform for the extras. A stream of people poured along Eleventh street, without a break, for three straight hours, from 8 to 11 a. m., making a procession which divided at Clark avenue. The Twelfth street bridge was lined with strangers waiting for down-town cars. Many walked to Chouteau avenue to catch the cars, which were crowded to suffocation before they reached the depot. Eleventh street from Spruce to Poplar was lined with private carriages, buggies, coupes, surreys and other family vehicles.

The Ball Room.

The great hall of the Merchants' Exchange is rapidly losing its commercial and putting on a festive dress. Long festoons of evergreens and of the colors of the Prophets drape every cornice, while all around the room and at the Scudder Fountain in the center rare exotic plants will fill the air with the balmy odors, not exactly of Araby, the blest, but of America. Four thousand tickets have been issued, and this number of guests the hall can accommodate readily.

The Fireworks.

There will be a bouquet of rockets let off from the den at Twelfth and Market streets when the procession starts at 7:30 o'clock. The next display of fireworks will be on the corner of Twentieth and Pine, where the exhibition will be large and varied. At the St. Louis Club there will be another beautiful showing. At the bridge entrance, on Third and Washington avenue, another pyrotechnic exhibition will occur, making in all three elegant displays.

Clear the Track.

Again and again the Prophets request that care be taken by those who have flags and ropes, etc., across the route, to remove them before the coming of the pageant. There must be twenty-six feet of clear space above the street, and if every one will see to this they will confer a favor upon the mysterious authority who to-day holds the city in the hollow of his hand.

Congressional Nominations.

BOSTON, MASS., October 5.—The Republicans of the Second District nominated B. W. Harris for Congress.

HARTFORD, CONN., October 5.—The Democrats of the First District nominated George Beach for Congress.

ABOUT TOWN.

CITY COUSELLOR BELL has furnished the Mayor with a list of the city officers to be voted for next November.

LOUIS REED and Robert Robertson, alias Thompson, were committed to jail to-day charged with robbery by John Upton.

THE Missouri Pacific brought in eighty-four cars Monday and up to 9 a. m. Tuesday fifty-five, and by 6 o'clock this evening there will be 100.

THERE is a snuff-colored overcoat awaiting an owner at the Four Courts. It was found this morning by Officer Armstrong on Eighth and Washington avenue.

THOMAS COOKSON, employed about some machinery on exhibition, had the thumb of his left hand crushed yesterday evening. It was dressed at the Dispensary.

LOUISE BROWN against Jacob Brown, and John Doolittle against Margie Doolittle, are suits for divorce, filed this morning. Desertion is the ground alleged in both cases.

IN a row caused by James Kane quitting work at the livery stable at St. Ange avenue and demanding his money, he received an ugly cut in the cheek. It was sewed up at the Dispensary.

IN the case of Albert J. Galley, charged with stealing a gold watch, Prosecuting Attorney Hogan entered a nolle pros. in the Court of Criminal Correction to-day. On arraignment it was discovered that the defendant was crazy.

JIM BIRD was locked up this afternoon by Detective Rahill. Jim ran a monte game into which a countryman went to the extent of $75. Bird wanted to compromise with a bunch of boodle, but just then the Detective put in an appearance with the above result.

THE semi-monthly meeting of the Woman's Board of Presbyterian Missions for the South was held this afternoon at the northwest corner of Sixth and Locust streets. Owing to the engagements of the ladies at Fair Ground booths and elsewhere, the attendance was very light, and no business of importance was transacted.

MR. THAD. HARRIS, the Democratic candidate for School Director in the Tenth Ward, is carrying everything before him in his region. The cordial reception which Mr. Harris is receiving from his friends must have far surpassed his most sanguine expectations, although it is not greater than he deserves. His election is a foregone conclusion.

THREE young men with seed in their hair came down yesterday from an up-river town to see the sights. They went to the same European hotel last night, but got separated somehow after dark and consequently each was heard inquiring at the office desk for the other this morning. They all straggled into the hotel before dinner time, shook hands and went out to repeat the circus again to-night.

THERE were some 150 boots put up and occupied last night at the Hotel Barnum; and yet in the face of such a rush, which is growing worse every hour, Mr. Barnum received a letter from an Illinois drummer this morning, saying, "Reserve for me a good, nice $1 sample room. I will arrive to-morrow." Mr. Barnum went right upon the roof and laid off a reservation the size of a sheet for this traveler.

THE Executive Committee of the State Central Democratic Committee were in session all day at their headquarters on North Fifth street. Their proceedings were strictly secret, and beyond the information gleaned from the secretary, Mr. Wm. Mayo, that they were making appointments of speakers for different portions of the State during the coming campaign, nothing could be gleaned. The committee will continue in session throughout to-morrow.

WM. HARRIS, of Montgomery county, Ill., was on his way to St. Louis this morning to celebrate and see the procession, and was accompanied by several friends. An accident to a freight train a short distance out on the Indianapolis and St. Louis Railway caused a delay of some time in the removal of the debris. In assisting in this work Harris was run against by a backing freight train and his left leg broken and badly mashed. He was brought to St. Louis by his friends and taken to the medical college on Eleventh street, near St. Charles, for treatment.

Jacques Offenbach.

PARIS, October 5.—Offenbach, the musician and composer, died this morning.

Jacques Offenbach, the deceased, whose works are well known and universally admired in this country, was born at Cologne, Germany, on June 21, 1819. His parents were Hebrews. Early evincing a talent for music, he studied from 1835 to 1837 at the Conservatory of Paris. Afterwards he played 'cello violoncello in the orchestra of the Theatre Comique. In 1847, his musical genius having become recognized by the critics, he was appointed leader of the orchestra of the Theatre Francais when only twenty-eight years of age. In 1855 he established the Bouffes Parisiens and composed a large number of burlesque operas and scenes, of which "Barbe Bleue," "Orphee aux Enfers," "La Belle Helene" and "La Grande Duchesse." The last opera Offenbach produced, "La Fille du Tambour Major," is now being produced in New York by both a French and English company. It met with great success in London and Paris.

Second District Police Court.

The docket of the Second District Police Court to-day presented twenty-four cases. Of this number twelve were arrested for disturbing the peace. Harmon Craig, Bridget McLaughlin, Kate Fallon and Mary Mellon were each fined $3 and costs for disturbing the peace. Henry Sawyers, a negro, was fined $500 for vagrancy. Jennie Leggett and Lizzie Williams, street walkers, were mulcted in the sum of $10 each, and John Reilly was fined $25 for begging on the streets.

THE SCHOOL ELECTION.

Condition of the Polls this Afternoon—Close Contest in the Eighteenth Ward.

At 6 o'clock this morning the polls opened for the election of School Directors in twelve wards of the city. The names of the judges, the precincts and the candidates have already been published in the POST-DISPATCH. The general election has progressed quietly, yet with rather more interest than generally falls to the lot of school elections in this city. There were party candidates in each ward. A visit was made to the various voting places by POST-DISPATCH reporters, and at 1 p. m. the indications were as follows:

The First Ward has three precincts, and the candidates are J. W. Parle, Democrat, and W. A. Hirt, Republican. In all of them Parle shows a majority. In the Second Precinct he stands two to one. Without doubt he will be elected.

In the Fifth Ward the candidates are Dr. Charles Spinzig (present incumbent), Democrat, and J. H. Fisse, Republican. This will be a very close ward, and nothing can be known certainly until the polls close. It is not improbable, however, that Fisse will show up slightly in the lead.

In the Sixth Ward the candidates are Otto D'Amour, Republican, and Thos. J. White, Independent Democrat. The vote in both precincts has been light, but D'Amour will probably be elected.

In the Tenth Ward there are three precincts. The Democratic candidate is Thad. C. Harris and the Republican Dr. Robt. J. Hill, present incumbent and President of the Board. In the first precinct the vote was about even; in the second Hill was ahead and in the third Harris was ahead. Harris' friends are very confident of his election.

In the Sixteenth Ward there is little interest, and Henry Schwaner is probably elected over Allen Sinclair, present incumbent.

In the Seventeenth Ward, both precincts, the indications point to the election of E. N. Bosley, Democrat, over Christopher A. Frantz, Republican. Bosley was decidedly ahead in the First Precinct.

In the Eighteenth Ward more interest is manifested than any other. The candidates are all well known and all popular men. Frank W. Peebles has the advantage of being the regular Democratic nominee. Nathan Stevens has the advantage of having lived a great many years in St. Louis, and that too right in the locality where he is a candidate. He is an independent candidate. Dr. Love as an independent Democratic candidate labors under the disadvantage of working against the regular Democratic nominee and also against the age and influence of Mr. Stevens. At 1 o'clock to-day Peebles led the race in the First, Second and Fourth Precincts, but in the Third, at 504 Leffingwell avenue, close to the home of Mr. Stevens, the latter led handsomely. Love is behind in all the precincts and out of the race. Predictions here are valueless.

In the Twenty-first Ward the vote is slow, yet close. H. H. Bodeman, however, will probably be elected over C. C. Hartung.

In the Twenty-fourth Ward an investigation of the situation shows that Wm. Knight, Democrat, will have a walk-over over H. N. Starkloff, Republican.

In the Twenty-sixth Ward Thos. Tijon will probably be elected.

In the Twenty-seventh Ward there is no Democratic candidate, and Michael Foerster, present incumbent, will probably be elected over A. Hewitt, Independent.

AMUSEMENTS.

Professor Mortimer, the magician, is delighting the habitues of the Pickwick Theater by his feats of magic and legerdemain.

At the Grand Opera-house J. K. Emmet's company will appear this evening in Tom Taylor's drama of "The Ticket-of-Leave Man."

The Camera Obscura, on the corner of Eleventh and Washington avenue, is proving a great attraction to rural visitors. The price of admission is only ten cents, and the moving sun pictures are well worth it.

"All the Rage," which has been received with much favor and is increasing in popularity, will be repeated this evening at the Olympic. The performance will be discontinued while the Veiled Prophets are passing the theater.

At 8 o'clock last night there was nothing but standing room at the Theatre Comique, and by the time the performance had fairly opened every foot of available space in the auditorium was occupied. The bill was a good one and well varied.

Buffalo Bill appeared before a crowded house at Pope's last evening in his new play of "The Prairie Waif," a border drama full of thrilling melodramatic incidents. To-night the performance, on account of the procession of the Veiled Prophets, will not begin before half-past nine.

CONDENSED TELEGRAMS.

The report of the Entomological Commission has been presented to the Secretary of the Interior.

W. H. Fairchild has confessed to the murder of his wife's step-father, Richard French, in Harper county, Kan., two years ago.

Russell, a member of the Ute Commission, arrived in Washington on Monday, with the ratification papers signed by 577 Ute Indians.

Slosson and Schaefer crossed cues in New York on Monday for the championship, the former winning the game. The game at its conclusion stood thus: Slosson 600; Schaefer 438; Slosson's average 33 1-2; Schaefer's 24 1-3. Schaefer made the highest run ever scored at the champion's game, 312.

Thrown From a Wagon.

While William Halley and Mrs. Dr. Bribach were out riding yesterday afternoon in a spring wagon the vehicle upset at the corner of Benton and Poepping streets, throwing the occupants out. Mr. Halley received severe concussion of the brain and was taken to his home, east side of Benton, between Stein and Vine streets, Carondelet, where Dr. Outten attended him. Mrs. Bribach, whose ankle was sprained, was attended by her husband at her home, corner of Fourth and Stein streets.

He Lost His Watch.

Frank J. Brown is poorer this morning than he was last night when he bunked on the sidewalk in front of No. 1015 Broadway. When Brown fell asleep between 11 and 12 o'clock last night he had on an old style open face gold watch and a twisted link chain with locket attached, all valued at $125. Somebody else has an old style open face English watch with twisted chain and locket, and Brown is trying to discover the new possessor.

REV. E. JOSE, Sutton, Neb., recommends Hamburg Drops as a sure remedy for Dyspepsia. He says: This wonderful medicine deserves recommendation, and I shall not fail to make it known among my congregation.

Funke—Hunicke.

The late mass at St. Joseph's Church this morning was unusually well attended. The cause of this was the marriage of Mr. Bernard Funke and Miss Maggie Hunicke, which took place at that church in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives, who all united in wishing the young couple a full measure of happiness.

RIVER NEWS.

THE Ashland has laid up at New Orleans.

To Cairo eight feet—at Eliza, the shoalest place.

THE Norton will have to New Orleans six grain-loaded barges.

THE Bedford has entered the New Orleans, Memphis and Bends trade.

THE E. W. Cole will go away in a few days with a cargo. H. Ben Jenkins will load her, no doubt.

THE commodious Minneapolis leaves for Keokuk and St. Paul this afternoon. Capt. Green commands.

CAPT. ISHERWOOD will back out the fast Diamond Jo this afternoon, for St. Paul. Mr. Mason is in the office.

THE esteemed steamer Dora, Capt. Lamont, Frank Dean clerk, leaves for Clarksville at 4 this afternoon. Don't forget the Dora.

IT does look remarkable, the locating of these rafts as indicated, and where they will exclusively use the wharf for some weeks.

CAPT. JOHN H. HANNA, the well-known and popular grain merchant of New Orleans, is here on business and comfortably ensconced in the Lindell.

THE renowned steamer John A. Scudder, Capt. A. J. Carter, will leave for New Orleans this evening. She has a fine and comfortably furnished cabin.

A VERY handsome and fast steamer has been put into the hands of the POST-DISPATCH reporter to sell for $7,500. She was built in May, 1879, and cost $12,000.

THE Mary Morton, Capt. Killeen, Charley P. Mason clerk, got in with a crowd this morning. She will leave again for St. Paul to-morrow evening. The Diamond Jo will not leave to-day, but to-morrow also for St. Paul.

THE Phil. E. Chappell brought in a heavy cargo. She returned to the Missouri last evening with a good trip, and is growing in the affections of the people. Charley Smith and Jo. D. Harkins are associated in the clerk's department.

EVANSVILLE, 4: The officers of the Cabler report the Virgie Lee as having been aground on Puppy Creek bar, and had worked off again above the bar, but whether she proposed to try the new channel, and attempt to come through, they could not say.

DUBUQUE, 3: The Mary Morton left at 8 last evening for St. Louis, bearing an excursion party in the neighborhood of fifty strong. There were bright ladies and gallant gentlemen, all bound for a pleasant time, and we predict they will have it. The evidence of the fireman on board the ill-fated Penn Wright, who was examined by the Coroner's jury, disclosed the fact that the boiler was carrying at the time of the explosion at least 180 pounds of steam. The Government Inspector had gauged the boat for 150 pounds, and to crowd up to the thirty pounds extra the engineer had fastened down the gauge with a weight of some kind. The object in getting so nigh a pressure was to make up for time lost in lying to for the fog.

CAPTAIN P. CONRAD is greatly displeased by the action of the harbor officers in permitting rafts to occupy the landing below Spruce street, to the detriment of steamboats and barges which have hitherto used the same landing. Capt. Conrad wishes Councilmen to go to the place designated and witness the apparent outrage that has been committed in the face of the fact that a perfectly distinct and distant location has always been used for breaking up lumber rafts. Here is Capt. Conrad, an old boatman and tax-payer, ruthlessly and unceremoniously compelled to tow his lumber-loaded barges above the bridge to be unloaded in the midst of steamboats which claim that part of the wharf as legitimately theirs, the best part of the wharf being occupied by wharf-boats. The indications point to war. It is difficult to appease Capt. Conrad when he is treated with indignity.

NEW ORLEANS Democrat, 3: The British steamship Alice arrived Wednesday and went up to Gretna for oilcake; she received at that point 2,231 sacks, which was taken aboard by seventeen men and stored in her hold in the short space of six hours. British ship Iron Cross, 1,508 tons arrived from Liverpool with 6,445 sks of salt. Good news was received last evening from the steamship St. Louis. She is once more afloat. At last accounts she was reloading her coal, and by the time our paper goes to press she will be at the passes on her way to sea. The German steamship America, twenty-three days from Bremen, via Galveston, arrived at her wharf yesterday. Her capacity is about 2,200 tons. She will load with return cargo for Bremen. She left at Galveston 640 emigrants for Texas, where they will settle. She brought to this city fifty-eight cabin and sixty-five steerage passengers.

CINCINNATI Commercial, yesterday: The new Whitewater got off for White River last evening. Six steamers depart to-day, including the W. N. Chancellor for Pomeroy, Pittsburg for Huntington, Sherley for Madison, and the Rhodes for Louisville. The Virgie Lee, for Evansville, departs on Wednesday. The Golden Rule leaves for New Orleans to-morrow. The fire alarm yesterday at $1:30 p. m., from Box 196, proved to be Mack's extensive planing-mill at the upper end of Fulton. The saw and planing-mills and $20,000 worth of lumber were burned, making a loss of at least $40,000. Two large barges for the Mound City Transportation Company, a large wharfboat for McCoy, and the hull of Capt. J. W. Blanks' new Ouachita packet, all in course of construction, were saved. The fire is unfortunate, as Mr. Mack has contracts for the building of four large 1,600-ton barges, in addition to the new boats already in course of construction. All the material for Capt. Blanks' new boat was out and ready for planking, but destroyed by fire with the mill. Mr. Mack has $22,000 insurance on his property. He will commence the erection of a new mill forthwith. Capt. Silas Adkins, hull inspector at St. Louis for the Underwriters, arrived here last night from St. Louis, and is registered at the Gibson House. He will return to St. Louis to-night, after inspecting several new barges.

Steamboating on the Lower Mississippi.

The conference held on Saturday in New Orleans between boat owners and the Governor of Louisiana was very interesting. The Democrat says: Capt. Kirk produced a statement showing the relative expense of running boats in both sections, the line between Huntington and Cincinnati being cited as an evidence that running expenses in the West were much smaller than here. The wages paid to the men and the price of coal in the West were but one-third of what was asked here. Going further into details, Captain Kirk said that the weekly expenses of the J. M. White, Frank Pargoud, R. E. Lee, John W. Cannon and other large steamers in the coast trade during the season amounted to between $5,000 and $8,000 per week. For the past season the White's expenses exceeded her freight receipts by $14,000, and yet she had full trips down, and had carried more than her fair proportion of up-river freight. Had it not been for her large passenger trade, which was principally due to her fine accommodations, this amount would have been a dead loss. The Cannon's expenses during the season were $4,500 or $5,000 per week. As regards the Western boats, the James Howard, City of Alton and the Anchor Line steamers plying between St. Louis and this port made twenty-one day trips at an expense of about $8,000 per trip.

The discussion of freight charges to way landings on the river was brought up and the steamboatmen explained that the expense of making a landing was quite as large to them at one place as at another. In some places, especially during low water, it was extremely difficult to land freight on account of the steepness of the banks, and this necessitated the employment of large crews.

The Governor asked whether the experiment of having one or two regular landings in each parish had ever been tried, and if such a plan would not tend to cheapen freight and passenger rates.

Capt. Kirk replied that the plan had been tried before the war, and had been abandoned as a failure. Persons voyaging up and down the river would not be put off at a place above or below their destination to save a small amount of passage money, and the planters all demanded to be landed on their own places and threatened the boats with suits at law in case of refusal.

The Governor then asked whether the plan of charging for passage, state-room and meals separately had ever been tried.

Capt. Kirk replied that it had and that this plan also had been abandoned. The rate to Donaldsonville on the first-class packets was $2, on the smaller boats it was less. For this amount two meals—supper and breakfast—were given, a state-room was furnished, and the passenger was transported for a distance of ninety miles.

Discussing the employment of steamboat hands and rousters, Capt. Aiken said that men were being paid $70, and four good meals at that, and even at that rate it was very hard to get men.

The Governor then furnished Capt. Kirk a list of questions, the answers to which will be returned in writing during the coming week. The questions relate to freight rates.

Mrs. Partington returns from the seaside. "Yes, I've been to a seaside retort. I have had my summer extortion, and I must confess my anticipations surpassed my expectations. To people in indignant circumstances the recommendations might be satisfactory, but it is beyond my reprehension how people of effulgence—people who have lugubrious homes, surrounded by all that embezzles civilized life—can put up in such caverns. They must have invested tastes."

NOTICE OF SPECIAL MEETING.

WABASH, ST. LOUIS & PACIFIC RAILWAY CO., ST. LOUIS, MO., September 17, 1880.

A SPECIAL meeting of the stockholders of this company will be held at the office of the company at St. Louis, Mo., on Saturday, November 20, 1880, commencing at 10 o'clock a. m., to act upon the following agreements made by the Board of Directors of said company.

An agreement to issue the bonds of this company to the amount of sixteen hundred thousand dollars, dated December 1, A. D. 1880, payable thirty years after date with interest at 6 per cent, payable semi-annually, and secured by mortgage upon the railroad formerly belonging to the Champaign, Havana and Western Railway Company, as required by the terms of consolidation with said company.

An agreement with the Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska Railway Company, whereby this company accepts a lease in perpetuity of the Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska Railway, and covenants to issue in payment therefor the six per cent bonds of this Company heretofore authorized and secured by its present General Mortgage, or other bonds of this Company of like tenor and effect, secured by mortgage on the said Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska Railway, to an amount not exceeding two millions two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; and also to issue, partly in further payment for said lease and partly in exchange for the stock of said Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska Railway Company, the common and preferred stock of this Company to the extent of not exceeding seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars each, being an increase of the Capital Stock of this Company to that extent.

An agreement with the Iowa, Missouri and Nebraska Railroad Company, providing for the construction of the railway of said company from the present terminus of the railway of the Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska Railway Company, at Centreville, Iowa, westward to the Missouri River, the lease thereof to this company in perpetuity of said railway; and the payment therefore by this company in 6 per cent bonds of this company, now issued and secured by its general mortgage, or in other bonds of like tenor and effect, secured by mortgage on the railroad of said Iowa, Missouri and Nebraska Railroad Company.

The said agreement provides also for the exchange of the capital stock of the Iowa, Missouri and Nebraska Railroad Company for the capital stock of this company, upon terms therein defined, being an increase of the preferred and common stock of this company to an amount not exceeding seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars each.

An agreement with the Attica, Covington and Southern Railway Company of Indiana, for the construction of the railway of that company for the lease of the same in perpetuity to this company.

An agreement for the construction of an extension of the railway formerly owned by the Champaign, Havana and Western Railway Company from Havana, Illinois, to Quincy, Illinois, and payment for the same by the issue of bonds of this company secured by its general mortgage, to an amount not exceeding fifteen thousand dollars per mile of such constructed road.

An agreement between this company and the Great Western Railway Company of Canada, for carrying the traffic of this company over the railway of that company during a term of years, upon terms therein defined.

An agreement between this company, the New York, Lackawanna and Western, and the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, securing to this company certain rights of traffic over the railroads of the two companies last named.

An agreement between this company and the Chicago and Western Indiana Railroad Company, providing for the lease by that company to this company of certain terminal facilities in the city of Chicago, and the guarantee by this company of the bonds of that company, bearing interest equal to the rental named in said agreement.

An agreement for the construction of a branch of the Chicago Division of the Railway of this company, commencing at a point near the intersection of the Mazon River with said railway, and extending westward through the Braidwood coal region to a connection with the Toledo, Peoria and Warsaw Railway at Washington, Illinois. The construction of such branch railroad to be paid for in bonds secured by the general mortgage of this company, to an amount not exceeding fifteen thousand dollars per mile.

An agreement with the "Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific R'y Co. of Nebraska," for the construction of the railroad of said Company in Nebraska and the transfer of said railroad to this Company by lease or consolidation, as the Stockholders of this Company may determine.

Trustees' Sales.

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE.—Pursuant to the provisions and for the purposes of a deed of trust of record in the office of the Recorder of Deeds in the city of St. Louis, Mo., in deed book No. 585 at page 503, the undersigned, trustee therein, hereby gives public notice that he will on between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 3 o'clock p. m. of that day, at the eastern front of the Courthouse in the city of St. Louis, Mo., sell at public vendue to the highest bidder, for cash, the following real estate conveyed to him by said deed, viz.:

WEDNESDAY, 27TH OCTOBER, 1880,

1st. Two lots of ground in "Lamdin Place," so called, being a subdivision of lot No. 5 of the "Clay Tract" made by the Northwestern Bank of Virginia, and a plat whereof is of record in said Recorder's office; said lots being numbered 14 and 15 on said plat and containing, said lot No. 14 forty feet and said lot 15 fifty feet on the south line of the New St. Charles road, alias Ashland avenue, and each lot having a depth of 200 feet.

2d. A lot of ground in block No. 1241 of said city of St. Louis, and fronting 25 feet on the west line of Sixteenth street, and having a depth west of 141 feet 4 inches to an alley, and being known as lot No. 4 of block No. 4 of West Bremen Addition to said city of St. Louis.

HENRY N. WELLS, As Trustee.

46F

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE.—Default having been made in the payment of portion of the notes described in a deed of trust from Jane Hendricks, a widow, dated the 25th of August, 1877, and recorded in the office of Record of Deeds at Clayton, St. Louis county, Missouri, in deed book No. 2, at page 390, notice is hereby given that the undersigned trustee in said deed will, in pursuance of the provisions and for the purposes of said deed, on between the hours of nine o'clock a. m. and three o'clock p. m. of that day, offer for sale, at public vendue, to the highest bidder, for cash, and at the east front of the Courthouse, in the city of St. Louis, Missouri, the following real estate to me consigned by said deed, and situated in St. Louis county, Missouri, viz.: Part of the east part of the west fractional half of the southwest quarter of section six, township forty-five north of range six east of the fifth principal meridian, and bounded as follows: Begin at a point in the south line of said section, being the southeast corner of land owned by B. J. Lind, and 11 51-100 chains, more or less, east of the west line of said section; to run thence east 10 79-100 chains to a private roadway 20 feet wide; thence north with the west line of said roadway 15 70-100 chains; thence west 10 39-100 chains to east line of B. J. Lind's land; thence south said east line 15 70-100 chains to place of beginning, and containing 16 62-100 acres.

WEDNESDAY, THE 27TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1880,

JOSIAH G. McCLELLAN, As Trustee.

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE.—Whereas Edward Cahalan and Mary Ann Cahalan, his wife, by their certain deed of trust dated the 3d day of June, 1867, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the county (now city) of St. Louis, State of Missouri, in book 241, page 295, conveyed to the undersigned the following described lots, pieces or parcels of ground in the county (now city) of St. Louis and State of Missouri, to-wit: Lots numbered eleven (11) twelve (12), thirteen (13) and fourteen (14) of block number eight (8), Daniel D. Page's Second Addition to St. Louis, having together a front of one hundred feet on south line of Parsons street by a depth of one hundred and twenty feet to a fifteen (15) feet alley, bounded north by Parsons street, east by an alley, south by an alley and west by lot numbered fifteen said block, and being part of same property acquired by said Cahalan of Wm. Stewart by deed recorded in Book 172, page 244, of St. Louis county (new city) records; which said conveyance to the undersigned was in trust to secure the payment of certain promissory notes therein described; and whereas one of said notes is past due and remains unpaid, and at the request of the legal owner and holder of said note, and in pursuance of the terms of said deed of trust, the undersigned will on,

WEDNESDAY THE 27TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1880,

between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of said day, at the east front door of the Court-house in the city of St. Louis, Missouri, expose to sale at public vendue for cash, the said real estate, for the purposes mentioned in said deed of trust.

GIVE the Veiled Prophets a hearty and enthusiastic reception this evening.

OUR advertising pressure continues, but we are doing our level best to keep up with the news of the day.

LOCK up your homes carefully to-night, and leave a rear guard when you turn out to witness the Oriental pageant.

THE Fair starts off with a magnificent boom. The weather is all that could be desired, and the city never looked so gay, prosperous and contented.

A DISPATCH to-day announces that a syndicate has been formed in Europe to raise the funds necessary to carry out the Panama Canal scheme. Europeans should be encouraged to dump their money on this side of the water.

THE allied fleet demonstrating in the neighborhood of Dulcigno is two and a half miles long, but it is doubtful whether six miles of solid fleet would intimidate the imperturbable Sultan so long as he is able to realize that the whole thing is a farce.

THE little manufacturers who are sustained and soothed by Protection are not as enthusiastic as they should be in favor of the eminent Free Trader, James A. Garfield. The esteem in which he is held by the Cobden Club may have a tendency to repress them.

REPUBLICAN circles in Washington are disturbed by the announcement that Mr. English will open his barrel and expend $75,000 in Indiana between this and the 12th inst. The regret seems to be very general in that quarter that he didn't squander his fortune earlier in the campaign, when it would have been less effective.

NEARLY all the big newspaper publishers in New York City have been indicted for publishing lottery advertisements. In this city this species of advertising is ingeniously dished up in the shape of telegraphic matter and the dispatches are so worded as to escape the vigilance of the authorities. There's no immorality, you know, in simply publishing "the monthly drawings."

THAT attenuated human icicle, Wm. M. Evarts, stood up in New York the other night and abused the Democratic party in good sesquipedalian sentences for its lack of business ability and its general thriftlessness, and yet he owes over $3,000 taxes in the city of Brooklyn. Measures have been taken to seize his delinquent real estate. A nice gentleman, truly, to lecture the Democratic party.

THE "bloody shirt" seems to have been folded up. Southern outrages don't pan out this year. The new line of Republican attack is to terrify Business Men who exist under the shadow of the benign tariff system. It is predicted by statesmen of the Credit Mobilier stamp that ten years of Democratic rule will convert Government bonds into wall paper for log cabins. The Fool-killer must be preparing to enjoy a rich harvest.

THE Baltimore Sun recently sent a correspondent into the by-ways of New England to spy out the nakedness of the alleged land of culture as a sort of quid pro quo for the efforts of the Northern penny-a-liners to misrepresent the South. The Sun is doing to others as others do it, which is after all the working version of the Golden Rule, and the results of the journalistic tour are valuable in more ways than one. It would seem that the correspondent, Dr. Baghy, found much more to commend than to condemn, and consequently both he and his readers leave their work with a better feeling to their Boreal countrymen than they had at the beginning. Every step that can be taken to make both North and South see how much there is to admire and respect in their neighbors is so much gained towards the goal—the Union as it was.

WE have been shown a letter from the largest silk importer in New York City, in which he says that if Garfield is elected President he will set fire to his establishment, kill his entire family, blow out his own brains and retire permanently from mercantile pursuits. Our opinion is that he is as big a fool as the Republican Business Man who affects to think that the country will start and go end-on to perdition in consequence of such a simple, trifling event as the election of Gen. Hancock to the Presidency.

IN his speech in Philadelphia last night Mr. Purio Welsh, the noted Republican merchant, expressed the opinion that "the Democratic party, by its affiliation with the Greenbackers, and the expressed sentiments of its leading men, gives rise to serious apprehensions that the national banking institutions will be overthrown and the currency of the country disturbed if they gain power." If Mr. Welsh could come out to Missouri and see the way in which his Republican friends are affiliating with the Greenbackers, he would be paralyzed, no doubt.

VOTE FOR THE "BEST MAN."

We hope that to-day's election of School Directors will call out a large vote, and that all intelligent and self-respecting Democrats will look to the character and fitness of the candidates rather than their politics.

We believe in party discipline and organization wherever political principles or political offices are concerned. But local and judicial positions involve no great party principles. Fitness is the only true test. A Republican School Director of character, honor and ability is infinitely preferable to a Democratic School Director without those qualities, and vice versa. Politics ought to have as little to do with the management of public schools as with the administration of public justice. The true test to be put in the election of either School Directors or Judges is not, Who is the better partisan? but Who is the better man?

Upon this doctrine, Democrats to-day should vote for the best men regardless of party lines.

THE BUSINESS MEN.

The alarmed Business Men of Philadelphia, who have voted the Republican ticket since 1856, met in mass meeting last night, pale and trembling with fear, to consult about the nature of the calamity that will certainly overtake the country when that noble son of Pennsylvania, Gen. Hancock, takes the oath as President of the United States. Purio Welsh, the ex-slave-owner of Cuba, who recently drew salary as Minister to England on the strength of his wealth, presided over the affrighted throng. A number of merchants made speeches, all bearing to one end—that the restoration of the Democratic party to power would paralyze industry, bankrupt the finances, encourage potato bugs, increase the blight and mildew, and generally convert the country into a howling waste, in the midst of which the voice of the man who said that he would "take sugar in his'n" would be heard inquiring, "Whither are we drifting?" The picture of the sullen dismay and desolation drawn by these prosperous brokers and merchants, predicated upon Democratic success, was far gloomier and more depressing than the most frenzied vision of the Evangelist of Patmos. The loosening of the seven seals, as seen by the revelator, was an innocent picnic compared with the woe and trouble likely to be visited upon this country in the event of Democratic success in November—if we are to believe Messrs. Welsh, Wharton, Blankenburg and others. It is quite common for people to imagine that catastrophe will follow a failure to carry out their views on nearly all leading questions and we are not surprised that the rich merchants of Philadelphia are of the opinion that the salt of life will lose its savor when their political friends are compelled to relinquish the offices which they have so artistically filled for twenty years. There is no argument so potent in the hands of the Republicans as that business will suffer if we have a change of administration in this country. That argument is always good. It will be just as good in 1890 as it is to-day. It has sustained every king, emperor, potentate and robber that ever oppressed people or murdered Liberty. The frightened business men of Philadelphia ought to know that a large majority of the people of this country are in favor of a change. They so expressed themselves four years ago very emphatically. A majority of a quarter of a million of voters declared that they were tired of the Republican party, its methods and its "prosperity." If the credit, honor, prosperity and welfare of this country are maintained wholly by a feeble minority it won't be long before the world will find it out and our credit will suffer accordingly. No nation can exist with such elements of destruction in its bowels as the fat sons of protection in Philadelphia have discovered, and if what they say is true there is no hope for us. We are past praying for. But we prefer to think that the Philadelphia Jeremiahs are mere political demagogues and alarmists and libelers of the American people.

IT would be hard to find a more striking example of the American weakness for titles than is furnished by that talented exponent of the frontier drama, "Buffalo Bill." This distinguished and histrionic genius served a brief period in the inchoate Legislature of the immature Territory of Dakotah, and his play-bills and lithographs now announce him as "the Hon. Wm. F. Cody." Of course Bill feels that his title of "Honorable" appeals to a higher social taste than that which is gratified by his wonderful marksmanship and his border heroism as exhibited on the stage. It looks a little odd just now to see titles dangling to the names of actors, but no doubt we will in time become accustomed to it. For instance, it may not be long before we will be confronted with the announcement that the Hon. William Shakspeare's historic tragedy of "Gen. Julius Cæsar" will be presented at the Olympic Theater by the Hon. John McCullough, supported by Gen. Fred. B. Warde, Col. John Lane, Major Collier and Judge John Collins—all under the superior management of the Hon. Wm. M. Connor. This, it strikes us, would sound well and give the public an idea of respectability that could be imparted in no other way—at least not so inexpensively.

THEY are just now having a great deal of trouble and annoyance at a hotel in Hudson-on-the-Ottowa River in Canada, over a lot of unruly spooks, whom nothing short of arson will satisfy. The disembodied spirit, as a general thing, hunts round in damp, fungous places, and contents itself with making cold shivers run up and down the observer's backbone. All this is too tame for the Canuck ghost, and it haunts a place by setting fire to it and burning it down. The stable attached to this hotel was fired twice and finally burnt and a constant watch is being kept on the main buildings to prevent them from becoming likewise a pyrotechnic display. There are the usual trimmings of tables and chairs slamming around, but the main feature of the performance, which keeps up the interest, is the constant dread of incendiarism. No amount of watching will do any real good inasmuch as the average Canadian ghost has too many facilities for getting up a blaze. All it has to do is to blow on one of its fingers till it gets it up to a red heat, insert the said finger into a pile of shavings, and there they are. No reason can be assigned for the peculiar malevolence of these glosts unless, as is very probable, they were while in the flesh boarding at the hotel and there starved and bled to death.

THE Paterson people have at last got their circus. Last year an advertised great moral show failed to put up its tents in that community on the specified day and there was a riot, a general strike and martial law proclaimed in the burg. It would seem that a circus excites the people of Paterson. They lose control of themselves and go, in a measure, wild under the influences of the menagerie and the sawdust ring. The first great World's Hippodrome that has succeeded in showing in the town opened there last week, and there is to-day hardly a half dollar of a later date than 1837 left in a Paterson stocking. The railroads gave excursion rates into the town; the farmers rolled in in old-fashioned wagons provisioned for a week and the workmen in the great shops took a holiday. In short such a great popular uprising has not been seen in Jersey since Crossington washed the Delaware. It strikes us that it would pay Barnum or old Forepaugh to run a show all the year round in Paterson.

WHILE in Cincinnati the other day, Mr. Roscoe Conkling went out to Chester Park and took a little drive behind the celebrated traveler Maud S. He remarked that he preferred the name of Kate for a fast animal and told the driver that he had made a pretty good record himself as a single-footed racker in the Rhode Island sweepstakes.

IT is said that broad-heeled shoes will soon be the fashion for ladies. This is a move in the right direction, and if the corset and the bang can be reformed away there will be nothing left to object to in lovely woman save the omnipresent and recurrent giggle which age cannot wither nor custom stale.

THE three great tragedians, McCullough, Keene and Barrett, opened on them in Chicago last night, and no such commotion has been experienced in a large city since "the ghosts did squeak and squeal" about the streets of Rome.

ANOTHER daily newspaper has been started in Kansas City. They have nine of them now and if they can only hold out for about twenty years the city will grow up to them.

THERE should have been a State election in Colorado to-day, but under the new Constitution it won't be held until the second of November.

Its Stuffing Causes a Remarkable Disagreement During the Honeymoon.

Depositions in the Divorce Suit of Frieda Bosse vs. Dr. Louis Bosse.

Married in July Last, and a Suit for Divorce Filed in August.

Startling Evidence Given by Mrs. Bosse, nee Gracer, Before the Notary.

The Bosse divorce suit was filed on the 31st of August, Frieda Bosse asking for relief from the matrimonial shackles which bound her to the young Dr. Louis Bosse in a petition remarkable at once for its singular developments, its pathos and its original, not to say striking, orthography. Mr. Bond is her attorney, and the husband's answer was filed a little later by Judge Gottschalk. His answer is a general denial of all the statements made, and the case was sent for trial into Judge Thayer's court, where it will come up during the present October term. On Saturday last, according to previous notice given by Judge Gottschalk, depositions were taken before Notary Bechtoisheim on the part of the husband, the defendant. Mrs. Bosse was represented by her attorney, Mr. Bond. She was the first and main witness examined, and below the main points of her deposition are given in full.

The whole proceeding was conducted very quietly, and there was a general endeavor to keep the affair out of the papers, but the POST-DISPATCH reporter penetrated the notarial sanctum, and is thus able to give the evidence.

Dr. Louis Bosse was only married on the 27th of July last—two months ago—and on the 31st of August the petition for a divorce was filed. Mrs. Frieda Bosse's story, as told in her deposition, is a remarkable one, and reveals a state of domestic infelicity rarely paralleled. The examination was commenced by on behalf of the defendant, being sworn by Mr. Gottschalk and testifying as follows:

My name is Frieda Bosse and I am the plaintiff in this suit.

Mr. Bond, counsel for plaintiff, desired to ask the following preliminary questions:

Q.—Do you live in the city of St. Louis? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And are healthy in mind and body? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Do you intend leaving the city before the trial of this case?—A.—No, sir.

Q.—Are you ready, if served with a subpœna, to testify on behalf of the defendant? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—If served, will you appear and testify. A.—Yes, sir.

Examination by Mr. Gottschalk:

Q.—When were you married? A.—On the 27th of July, 1880.

Q.—Where did you reside before you were married to the defendant? A.—With my mother in this city.

Q.—What were you doing at that time? A.—I was employed at Mr. Teutenberg's confectionery at that time.

Q.—How long before you were married did you become acquainted with the defendant? A.—About six years.

Q.—Were you intimately acquainted with him? A.—Yes, sir; I was living in the neighborhood.

Q.—Do you know the fact that Dr. Louis Bosse, Sr., adopted the defendant as a child? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—How long before you were married to the defendant did you know him intimately? A.—He came to see me about a year before we were married.

Q.—Where was your wedding celebrated? A.—At his parents'—Dr. Bosse's—residence.

Q.—What minister celebrated the ceremony? A.—Minister Link.

Q.—You have no certificate of marriage? A.—No, sir.

Q.—After you were married, where did you live with your husband? A.—Down on the Natural Bridge road and Turner avenue.

Q.—Is that within the city limits? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Did you live there from the time that you were married till the day that you brought this suit? A.—Yes, sir. I lived there until the 24th of August, a week before I brought this suit.

Q.—Is the defendant living there yet? A.—I don't know, as far as I know he is living there yet.

Q.—What is the defendant doing by the way of business? A.—He is practicing medicine. He is a doctor.

Q.—Has he any property that you know of? A.—No, sir, none that I know of.

Q.—Was he a single man before he married you? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—State what you mean by ill-treatment. Give us the facts that you say amount to ill-treatment. A.—Well he would fuss with me and abuse me; fussing, scolding, besting and kicking was the ill-treatment he gave me.

Q.—Can you state any time that he beat you when anybody was present and saw it? A.—Yes, sir. He beat me in the presence of the stable boy, his cousin, Eddie Bosse, and my sister.

Q.—State when and where it was that he beat you in the presence of the stable boy, and how often? A.—He often beat me when the stable boy was present.

Q.—Give us the first time that he beat you in the presence of the stable boy. A.—Well, one Sunday morning, about 9 o'clock, as he was leaving the house, he said to me, "Freida, if I kill the duck for dinner, have you got everything that you need for the stuffing?" I said, "I have onions, eggs and everything except white bread." He then sent the stable boy for the bread that I needed, and I filled and stuffed the duck for dinner with onion stuffing. When he came home and saw the onions in the stuffing, he got just like a wild man and threw down his knife and fork, cursed me and called me names, and asked me what kind of eating that was. "Why," said I, "that is onion stuffing." He then said that he wanted apple stuffing, cursed me and said that I didn't know how to cook and knew nothing about housekeeping. I said to him then, "Louis, if I had known you wanted different stuffing I would have made different stuffing for you, but there are different ways of cooking; some like a thing this way and some that way. If you had told me me that you did not like onions, but liked apples, I should have used apples in the place of onions." In the morning he had said nothing to me about preparing apples for the stuffing. I had always used onions before that. I said to him then: "If you don't like the stuffing come and eat some of the duck meat and some of the rest of the dinner," and he said: "No, I don't want nothing." He wouldn't sit down to the table then, but went and sat down in the kitchen, fussing and scolding. During that time his cousin, Eddie Bosse, and the stable boy were at the table eating. I wasn't eating then and he asked me why I didn't eat. I said to him, "If you will not eat, I will not eat either." I coaxed him then to come to the table and eat and said to him, "I have enough of eating and I think every wife would have enough if their husbands scolded and abused them as you do me." He then said, "If you don't sit down this very minute now and eat, I will show you who is boss in this house, you or I." He got up then and forced me to go to the table and sit down, and I took some victuals on my plate just to please him, but I couldn't eat; I was too excited. He then said, "What are you doing at the table? Do you call that eating or playing? Eat now or I will break your neck. I will show you if you won't eat," or "if I won't make you eat," or something like that. He then went and got a stick and stood behind my chair and said to me: "Here, Miss,

"DO YOU SEE THAT STICK?

That is for you, and if you will not eat now I will break this stick on your back. I will break every bone in your body. Fill up your plate and eat the way I want you to." I then filled my plate for good, and he kept standing behind me till I had the whole plate emptied. I was forced to eat it; I did it to please him; to keep him quiet. He then took the same stick, and laid it aside on the shelf and said: "Remember

THIS STICK IS FOR YOU;

don't you never touch it; leave it lay where I put it." I then got up and went to the kitchen to clean my dishes and clean up the kitchen and he came in after me, still abusing and scolding me. My sister at that time was engaged to be married and he commenced to speak about my brother-in-law, saying he would have a sweet life with my sister—that "devil of a sister of yours," as he called her. He said that he himself had married the devil's grandmother, meaning me, and said that my brother-in-law would be sorry if he married my sister; that he would live the same life that he had lived. I then said to him, "Louis, you talk about not being happy. It is your own fault, for I am sure I do everything to please you, but it seems I can do nothing to suit you; I know one thing, that Mr. Arndt (my brother-in-law) will not treat Tilie the way you treat me." I had no sooner said that than he came after me and got me in a corner and said to me; "Do you mean to say that I treat you mean?" And he kept beating me until I said no. He asked me if I would ever say that again, and kept beating me until I said I never would. He then said that he wanted me to fill him a duck with apple stuffing for supper. I said, "All right, you get me the apples and I will have it done for supper." He and the two boys left the house to get the apples, and when he came back I was up stairs. He came up stairs where I was and told the stable-boy to kill a duck and pick it, and told me to hand the boy a white apron to keep him from soiling his clothes. I did so, and in a little while after the boy came up stairs and said: "Doctor, I can't pick that duck; I will get my clothes all soiled." The doctor said, "Never mind, Herman; you don't need to clean that duck. She (pointing to me) has to

CLEAN THAT DUCK,

the lazy thing. I will make her work." Then the boy handed me the apron and left the room. The Doctor then ordered me to go down stairs and pick the duck dry. He said he wanted to sell the feathers and wanted me to pick it dry so he could sell them. I then went down stairs to do so, but could not pick the duck dry. I went up stairs and told him so, saying, "Louis, it will take me all day to pick that duck dry." "What," said he, "did you ever hear of anybody picking a duck dry? You greenhorn, you. I always said I had a fool for a wife that didn't know nothing about work." He then asked me if I was crazy and I said, "No, Louis, you told me to pick that duck dry." He then got up from the floor where he was lying and stood before me and scolded me until I denied that he had told me to pick the duck dry, fearing that he would beat me. He then told me to go down stairs, heat some water and scald the duck. That was about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. I had not more than got down stairs in the kitchen before he called me to come up stairs and asked me what I was doing down stairs. I said: "Why, Louis, you have told me to go down stairs and start a fire." He said: "Here, you stay up here and fan me. I will make you work, if it is Sunday afternoon." I then fanned him from then till about 7 o'clock in the evening, and my duck was still laying there, not picked or cleaned. About 7 o'clock I said to him, "Why, Louis, I had better go up and get some supper for the boys, for Eddie must be going home now, and I don't want him to leave the house without any supper." S.id he, "All right, go down and

GET A COLD SUPPER."

I then went down stairs, and what I could have done in ten minutes—get a cold supper—took me from 7 till 8, a whole hour, because I did nothing else but run up and down stairs to wait on him. About eight o'clock he came down stairs, drank some beer, but would eat no supper. While the boys were eating their supper I thought I would start the fire, heat the water and pick the duck before it was too late. I was no more than to the stove when he came up to me and said, "What are you doing here?" I said, "Louis, I want to start the fire, it is getting so late." He then said, "No, you sit down and eat; it you don't I will make you the same as I did for dinner." Then I went and sat down to please him. After supper I cleaned my dishes, started the fire and, after the water was hot, picked and cleaned the duck. It was about ten o'clock when I got through and I put the duck in vinegar and put it down cellar to keep it till next day. Before going up stairs I asked the doctor whether he didn't feel like eating something, as he had eat nothing for supper, and he said, "No, I don't want anything." We then went up stairs, and about twelve o'clock at night he called me, saying: "Come here, you lazy thing. Go down in the cellar and bring up some bread and butter and cheese for me." Said I to him:

"LOUIS, YOU DON'T KNOW HOW TO TORMENT ME."

I had no more than said this, when he got up and said to me: "Do you mean to say that I torment you? You are not going down stairs; but I will show you what tormenting is." He then came up to me and beat me. I begged him to stop. "Well," he says, "You think you have got an awful beating today, don't you? But never mind, wait till it gets a little later, when there is nobody on the road, I will give you a still worse one and then you will know after this what tormenting means." I then begged him not to hit me any more, telling him that no man had a right to BEAT HIS WIFE THE WAY HE DID ME.

"Ah, said he," "remember you are my wife and you belong to me. I can do with you whatever I please, I can beat you and kill you and

I WILL KILL YOU

and I can stand up for it. Just wait till you are asleep. I will break your jaw bones, or I will break every tooth in your mouth." The same afternoon he had kicked me in the bed-room and nobody saw that. After he had kicked me I ran down stairs to get away from him, saying to him, "I am going home now." He hallooed down stairs and asked me why. "Well," said I, "I am not going to be kicked by no man the way you have kicked me just now with those heavy shoes." I said that in the presence of the two boys—the stable boy and the Doctor's cousin. The Doctor came down stairs after me and said,

"YOU SAY I KICKED YOU, YOU LIAR, YOU."

Then he kept beating me in the presence of those two boys till I denied that he had kicked me up stairs. After I had denied that he had kicked me up stairs, he said to those boys, "Do you see that liar? She said I kicked her, now she says I didn't."

Q.—What time was that? A.—That was Sunday afternoon, about three o'clock.

Q.—That all happened in one day? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Was the stable boy present during all that time? A.—No, sir, not all through it; he was present when I ran down stairs after the Doctor had kicked me.

Q.—Did the stable-boy see him kick you? A.—No, sir, nobody saw him kick me, but the stable-boy saw him strike me.

Q.—How often did the Doctor strike you in the presence of the stable-boy? A.—I can't say that, I didn't remember that.

Q.—Can you state what time it was during that day that the stable-boy saw him strike you? A.—It was in the afternoon between two and four o'clock.

Q.—Can you remember the day of the week? A.—That was on Sunday. This all happened on the same day.

Q.—State in what particular manner he tormented you. What do you mean by "tormented you?" A.—He scolded me.

Q.—The way that you have stated? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—How long after that was it that you left him? A.—The following Tuesday.

Q.—Did he at any time before this torment you, as you say, or beat you? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—How often? A.—Well, how often I can't say, but he did often for every little reason that he thought he had.

Q.—Did he beat you with a stick? A.—He beat me with his fist—

WITH BOTH FISTS.

Q.—Where did he strike you? A.—On my head.

Q.—Did anybody ever see him hit you outside of this Sunday? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Who was it? A.—My sister. About a week before that, on Tuesday, the doctor came home for supper, and—

Q.—What is your sister's name? A.—Jessie Gracer.

Q.—Where does she live? A.—With my mother, at 1017 North Fifteenth street.

Q.—What is that stable boy's name? A.—Herman Pieper.

Q.—Does he stay with the defendant? A.—I don't know. He did at the time I was out there. I was going to say that on that Tuesday evening when he came home for supper, I had butter on the table and had no ice for it. I took some fresh well water—which I had often done before—and put on the butter. Previous to that he had said nothing about it, but that night he started a fuss about it, saying, 'What has that water got to do on the butter?' 'Why,' said I, 'Louis, I had no more ice, and I have done that often before and you have said nothing about it.' He then called me a liar and scolded me and abused me. He then went off to the saloon and came back about 12 o'clock. When he saw the water on the butter he used this language: "What is that water doing on that butter? Take it off or I will take the butter and dish and

SLING IT AT YOUR HEAD."

I then got up and took the water off and he commenced scolding and said I knew nothing. He said that I wasn't a housekeeper and knew nothing about cooking. I told him that I knew as much about cookings as any other young girl; that every young girl, after she gets married, has to learn how her husband likes looking done and that there were different ways of cooking.

Q.—He didn't beat you then? A.—Not then. He went to the saloon then and stayed away till about twelve, and when he came back I had my dishes washed and the kitchen cleaned. We had some meat left from supper, and I had been in the habit of putting what meat was left from supper down cellar to keep for the next day. But being that it was so hot that day, and having no ice, I knew that the meat would spoil, and that then the Doctor would fuss about it. So to avoid that I went and gave the meat to the dogs out on the street. Our kitchen led out on to a little porch, and the porch led out on a side street—Turner avenue—where the stable boy was sitting and playing with our dogs. I threw the meat out on the street where the boy was, not wishing to throw it on the porch for fear of getting it all greasy. Then some strange dogs in the neighborhood came and got some of the meat. The Doctor on coming back had no more than got inside of the gate when the stable boy went up to him and told him that I had fed the dogs in the neighborhood, giving ours nothing to eat. The Doctor then came in the kitchen scolding and abusing me in the presence of the stable-boy. I then said to the Doctor that he ought to be ashamed of himself, abusing me in the presence of the stable boy as he did; that he didn't show any respect at all for me as his wife. He then came up and beat and kicked me for saying that in presence of my sister. Then I said to him,

"I WISH I WAS DEAD;

I would be better off than this." My sister said, "You are right, Frieda." He then said to her, "Here is the door, leave this house as quick as you can." I begged of him to let her stay, for it was too late at night, almost 12 o'clock then. "No," he said "she has got to go this very minute." I said, "Well, if less is has to go I will go, too, but we will not go home tonight." He then said to me, "You say you are going? Well, go as quick as you can. Leave this house this very minute, or I will make you go." I begged of him to let me stay till morning with my sister, and he said, "No, you said you were going; now go."

HE WENT AND GOT A BUGGY WHIP

and was going to force me to leave with the whip. I begged of him not to strike me with that whip. I then ran up stairs and my sister followed me and we both sat up there crying. It was then about twelve o'clock at night. He then sent the stable boy up four or five times, asking me whether I wasn't ready to go, saying that the horse and buggy was all ready for us down stairs—that he had the horse and buggy hitched up for us to go home with. I then ordered the boy down stairs and told him that he need not come up any more. The Doctor and the boy then left the house in the buggy and came back at three o'clock in the morning. My sister and I were afraid to stay in the house by ourselves, and so we sat out on the side of the street on the steps, waiting for the Doctor to come back. We sat there till we heard his buggy coming up the road, and then we went in and sat down in the office. When he came out he said to me, "Why ain't you in bed?" I said, "Louis, we were afraid to go upstairs by ourselves." He then asked me whether I was crazy, and I said, "No, Louis, I am not crazy yet, but if this life keeps on any longer I will be insane soon." He then said, "Ah, we will then have to take you to the lunatic asylum, and I guess we will take you there." He then wrote out a certificate to take me to the lunatic asylum and he gave it to the boy to hand to me, in the presence of my sister. My sister and I both sat in the kitchen, and the Doctor and the boy sat in the office. I told him to put that certificate back where he got it from. I never read it. The next morning I saw what it was which was laying on the Doctor's desk, where he had left it.

Q.—When was it that he beat you when the boy saw it? A.—About 11 o'clock at night, after he came back from the saloon.

Q.—Did the boy see him beat you or kick you at any other time than that which you have stated? A.—Well, I don't remember.

Q.—Did your sister see him beat or kick you at any other time than what you have stated? A.—Yes, sir; the next morning—Wednesday morning.

Q.—State what your sister saw the next morning? A.—She saw him beat me with a slipper.

Q.—Where did he strike you? A.—On my head and shoulder.

Q.—I am speaking of Wednesday morning. How often did he strike you that morning? A.—He struck me with a slipper, but I don't know how often.

Q.—You can't tell how many blows he struck you? A.—No, sir.

Q.—What time in the morning was it when he hit you with that slipper? A.—That came about in this way. The Doctor made me and my sister go upstairs, he and the boy remaining downstairs for a while. After my sister and I had retired, the Doctor and his boy also came up and retired. The next morning he awoke me by beating me with a slipper till I was awake, saying: "Get up, you lazy thing." He fussed with me then, and told me that he was going home and tell his father that he was tired of married life, and that he was going to get a divorce. I talked good and kind to him, and begged him not to go to his father.

Q.—And your sister heard all that? A.—No, my sister didn't hear that.

Q.—Did your sister go out then? A.—Yes, sir; and I staid with him and he beat me again.

Q.—Where was it that he beat you when your sister saw it? A.—That was in the boy's bedroom.

Q.—It was in that room that he beat you? A.—Yes, sir; and my sister saw that.

Q.—Was she in the same room? A.—That was about seven o'clock in the morning. My sister was in the same room.

Q.—Did she go out of the room then? A.—She went down stairs and I remained up stairs alone with him. He then beat me again, and nobody saw that.

Q.—How old is your sister Jessie? A.—She will be fifteen the 6th of this coming November.

Q.—Did your sister see him beat you at any other time? A.—I can't remember.

Q.—How many rooms did you occupy there with the Doctor—had you the whole house? A.—Yes, sir.

Mrs. Bosse was cross-examined by Mr. Bond, but her testimony did not vary. Herman Pieper, the stable boy, was then put upon the stand. On his direct examination he testified that the Doctor did not abuse plaintiff, but on cross-examination he contradicted himself. The proceedings were then adjourned.

LOCAL GREENBACKERS.

Split Between the National and Union Greenback-Labor Party—The Primaries and Convention.

There seems to be a slight disaffection in the ranks of the Greenback-Labor party in this city. A body which is known as the Union Greenback-Labor party, and of which Dr. Goodwin is chairman, have entirely split off from the regular organization. Dr. Goodwin claims to be one of the originators of the Greenback-Labor movement, and says that the party was contaminated by such men as Andy Brown and others, who used it simply for political pedlary and nothing else. Dr. Goodwin was very emphatic in his denunciation of the opposite wing of his party, and spoke of some of its leaders in very severe terms. The candidate for Sheriff whose nomination, it is expected, will be made unanimous at the coming Greenback Convention Andy Brown, is by a large number of Greenbackers conceded to be a foregone conclusion. As to the remainder of the ticket they are dumb. George M. Jackson, who was found at the Laclede Hotel, said that the Greenback party controlled at least 8,000 votes in this city, and if the party nominated such a man as Andy Brown it would not be showing any respect for itself. He for one would oppose his nomination, although at present he was more interested in the "Oklahoma boom" than in politics. He said that there was a great deal of opposition in the party against Mr. Brown, and he could not see how the antagonistic factions could at present be united. He was not perfectly satisfied that Mr. Brown would be nominated. At Mr. Brown's livery stable on Eleventh street it was ascertained that gentleman had gone to the Fair Grounds and would not be back again for the day. It was, however, mooted around that he expected to be the nominee for Sheriff on the Greenback-Labor ticket. As to the other possible nominees upon the ticket it was impossible to obtain any information. The National Greenback-Labor party ignores entirely the Union Greenback Labor party, of which Dr. Goodwin is the head and front and in their turn the latter repudiate the former. Dr. Goodwin says that at present before calling any primaries he will have to hear from Mr. Hugo Preyer, the chairman of the National committee. He shall act according to the instructions thus received. In speaking about the primaries which the Greenback party intend to hold to-morrow evening he said, while a sardonic smile overspread his otherwise benignant features, "A pretty set of primaries those fellows will have. They're a nice lot, they are." The National Greenback-Labor party holds its convention on Thursday to nominate a city ticket.

Knocked Down and Robbed on Cass Avenue.

About 1:30 o'clock this morning Officer Bray brought August Glenning, a farmer from Trenton, Ill., to the Fourth District Police Station very drunk. Glenning says that as he was walking along Cass avenue between Twentieth and Twenty-first he was assaulted by two young fellows who knocked him down and robbed him of $30.

He Forgot, and What it Cost Him.

W. A. Taylor, of Vermont, Ill., is looking for $20 in currency and a draft for $200 which he put down in the Mona House and forgot to pick up again. Taylor laid the money, which was wrapped up in a draft for $200 on some bank in this city, signed by J. Mershow & Co., of Vermont, Ill., payable to W. A. Taylor, on the seat of the water closet, and returned in about an hour, when he thought of it, but it was gone and now he mourns the loss.

THE LODGINGS BUREAU.

Lively Scenes Around the Merchants' Entertainment Agency this Morning.

Quite a lively place this morning was the Merchants' Bureau of Entertainment, at 519 Chestnut street, where strangers are furnished gratis the names of boarding-house keepers and lodging-room keepers who will take them in out of the cold and care for them during the Fair visit. The place, or the fact that there is such a place, is beginning to be well-known. Probably, 2,000 people have already found suitable quarters through the agency of this bureau. Naturally, the hotels do not aid the institution to any alarming extent by giving information as to its existence, for they all want and will take guests as long as there is a six-foot plot of vacant space within their four walls. The Bureau was thronged this morning by strangers with their gripsacks and by boarding-house keepers looking for guests. Two clerks have been kept on the jump answering questions, making selections, writing addresses and shipping strangers to comfortable quarters ever since daylight, and they will continue until late tonight. Generally the men, and especially the young men, who have come to the town to see the sights, can shift for themselves and find a cheap down-town lodging or a cot somewhere; but it is the man of sedate years, the man who knows no such phrase as "knocking around with the boys," and the man who has come to town with his wife or with his children, who is totally at a loss to know what to do with himself and his wife when he has reached the city and found the hotels virtually closed against him. He wanders around aimlessly for a while, looking in exactly the wrong direction for bed and board. In the course of these wanderings he generally passes some restaurant. The sight and smell of food revives him. He will at least feed. So he goes in and his wife and his bundles and his babies are stowed away around a crowded table, where the clash and din of plates is nearly deafening. If he get enough to eat in the course of an hour he is lucky, and still luckier if what he obtains is not stone cold. He goes out again, and wanders some more, and kind indeed is the soul who points out the way to him to the Merchants' Bureau of Entertainment. Here he is questioned as to his necessities and what he is willing to pay, and sent on his way rejoicing. The bureau, as is well known, is sustained by contributions of leading merchants. At noon to-day there were on its lists addresses sufficient to accommodate 3,000 people.

Commendable Enterprise.

Our representative Furniture House, the Scarritt Furniture Co., deserve much credit for the energy they have displayed in recovering from the loss of their salesrooms by fire. In less than a week they opened in commodious warerooms an elegant stock, and they now have undoubtedly the newest and most desirable assortment of choice, artistic patterns in the city. Their prices are guaranteed the lowest. Call at their new warerooms, two doors above old location, 619 to 621 North Fourth street.

THE OKLAHOMA BOOM.

What Capt. Payne and His Followers Are Doing.

Capt. D. L. Payne, the "Oklahoma explorer," is still one of the "lions" at the Laclede Hotel. Whenever his herculean form is seen moving through the corridors of that well-known hostelry the Captain is the cynosure of all eyes. The indefatigable and determined pioneer, whose whole soul appears to be thrown into the vast enterprise of which he is the originator and promoter, has been energetically, although quietly, working, and now says that when they make their next movement in the direction of Oklahoma Territory he will be accompanied by fully ten thousand people. He is at present actively engaged in making financial preparations for the next invasion, so that when they enter the disputed Territory and settle down they will be supplied with most of the ordinary requirements of civilized people in an uncivilized country. Saw mills, agricultural implements of all kinds, household utensils, carpenters' and other tools will be brought out, and, said Capt. Payne, "as soon as we cross the line we will publish a newspaper." Type and talent have already been engaged, and when the "Future Great" city of Oklahoma becomes the center of the far West this organ may be a power in the land. Mr. George M. Jackson says that he intends to start out with the next expedition, and is enthusiastic over it. He said: "It is the greatest scheme the country ever saw, and towns and villages will rapidly grow up around the capital city of Oklahoma. There's money, lots of money in it, and I am going." Letters are being received daily from Texas, Louisiana and other Southern States asking for information regarding the expedition and the date of its departure. Information relating to the latter will be withheld from the public for obvious reasons, but an information office, which will be in charge of Mr. Jackson, will shortly be established at the corner of Fifth and Chestnut streets.

NORTH ST. LOUIS LOCALS.

The new paper mills of Meyer & Brothers will start up next Monday with a full force.

The employes of the North St. Louis brickyards received an advance of twenty-five cents per day yesterday.

Within the coming week 3,000,000 feet of rafted lumber is expected to arrive for the North St. Louis dealers.

Captain Michael Daly will send down a detail of twenty-five officers to the parade of the Veiled Prophets to-night.

The union prayer meetings that have been so successful at the Fourth Baptist Church will be omitted this week.

The directors of the Social Turner Hall, Thirteenth and Monroe streets, will have a special business meeting on Friday.

Superintendent Henry Bercher, an employe of the Northern Mills, had his right foot badly smashed by a rail of hot iron falling upon it.

By an order of the officers of the Water Works the ascent to the Water Tower, Fourteenth and Grand avenue, will be kept open day and night of this week.

A foot race of 200 yards has been arranged between Henry Erbs and Wm. Slackman, to come off next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the foot of Grand avenue, near the Water Works.

This morning while Chas. L. Sterns was crossing a railroad track on Casey street, Lowell, he slipped and fell upon it, dislocating his right knee-joint. Dr. Edw. Borck is his attendant.

Thursday evening Mound City Lodge, No. 276, Odd Fellows, will have a public installation of their new officers at their hall, Fourteenth and Monroe streets, and a large attendance of visitors is expected.

The lumber piers' strike ended this morning, and the men went to work at one cent advance per course, making eleven cents instead of ten. The men demanded twelve and a half cents, and held out two weeks.

The Concordia Zither Association (German) met last night, and elected August H. Meyer director and appointed a committee on revision of their by-laws and changed their meeting nights from Wednesday to Monday.

Every train arriving at North St. Louis this morning is crowded with visitors to the Fair. Two extra trains of eighteen cars each arrived at daylight, and one of twenty-two cars at 11 o'clock, and several more are expected before dark.

The North St. Louis Ladies' Sewing Society held an election of officers this forenoon, resulting as follows: Mrs. S. H. Sonneschein, president; Mrs. Ed. Popper, vice-president; Mrs. A. Loth, treasurer, and Mrs. M. J. Steinberg, secretary.

HORRIBLE FATE.

The Fearful Death of Engineer Patrick O'Brien.

Between 11 and 12 o'clock last night, Patrick O'Brien, the night engineer at Brown & Company's oil works, on Jefferson avenue near the intersection of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, met with a frightful death all alone in the engine-room of the works. A man named Kelly, who was near the door of the engine-room, saw O'Brien at the engine and then walk towards the immense fly-wheel, which is fourteen feet in diameter, having a depth of about six feet below the flooring of the room. As he saw O'Brien walk towards this wheel he turned and was just about to leave the vicinity, when he heard a sound similar to the breaking of a board. He rushed back to the engine-room, not knowing what had occurred, and as he did O'Brien's

LIFELESS BODY WAS DASHED OFF

from the immense wheel against the south wall of the room. A few feet above a horizontal tangent line of the top of the wheel there is a window in the south wall. Against this the poor fellow's body was dashed, knocking the sash and glass outside and allowing the body to fall to the ground at the foot of the wall. Kelly hurriedly notified the night watchman of the works, and they both stopped the machinery as soon as possible, but life left the body in the wheel-pit, and the broken limbs and crushed skull, as the body lay at the base of the wall, soon told the dead man's fellow-workmen that all was over and

NOTHING COULD BE DONE.

The body was removed to the dead man's house, No. 2739 Papin street, where his loving wife and four innocent children were aroused from their slumbers to look upon the crushed body of the husband and father that had left them in health and good spirits but a few hours before.

An hurried investigation showed that the body had struck a board lying over the north end of the fly-wheel pit, causing the noise which attracted Kelly's attention. Mr. Brown, the proprietor, who bestowed unlimited praises upon the deceased for reliability and industry, is at a loss to know how the fatal accident occurred. The wheel revolves from north to south, the shafts being attached from the north. The only way in which the accident can be accounted for is that O'Brien was standing at the south side of the pit and fainted, or in some unaccountable way fell over the end of the pit, the next spoke of the wheel dragging the body down with it and throwing it up again from the north side. When the body reached the highest point it became loosened from the wheel and was dashed against the wall. The Coroner held an inquest at the house late this afternoon.

ANOTHER DEATH.

George Dauber, of the Pompier Company, Dies at Three O'Clock this Morning.

George Dauber, the fireman who was so badly mangled on the night of the fire at Scarritt's furniture factory, died this morning at his residence, 512 South Fifth street. It will be remembered that Dauber was thrown from the truck, and it was thought at the time that he could not live for twenty-four hours. He lingered along, however, in great suffering until this morning, when death relieved him from his troubles. Dauber was thirty-six years old at the time of his death, and leaves a wife and three children to mourn his untimely end. He has been a member of No. 4 Pompier Company since its organization in December, 1873, and has been a valuable and plucky member of the corps ever since. His exploit at the Filley fire when he caught on to the edge of the broken roof and hung there while his comrades dropped down to death below, is still fresh in the public mind. He was always foremost in every dangerous work that the laddies have been called on to do, and his death was in the plain line of duty. His demise is the fourth that has happened this summer, but the present unexpected casualty list on the force does not deter the other boys from taking any and all risks in their work. The funeral will take place at 10 o'clock to-morrow to the new Picker's Cemetery, and the remains will be escorted to the grave by the company to which he belonged and by a guard of honor of two men from each company.

The other injured firemen are all at work again, except Tom Hennessy, who is still somewhat under the weather.

Protect Your Eyes.

Proper care of the eyes is a duty no person should neglect. As the sight begins to fail it is of the utmost importance to procure proper eye-glasses. A bad pair of spectacles will do incalculable injury, and a proper fitting pair will greatly aid in prolonging the sight. It is, therefore, advisable to call and examine Prof. Hirschberg's Improved Diamond Spectacles and Eye Glasses, at 107 North Fourth street, under Planters' House.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

Chief Renshaw started for Belleville this morning to attend the meeting of a council to be held there.

Henry Price and Philip Johnson were arrested for disturbing the peace. Discharged for want of prosecution.

Susan Sarah Saisee appeared before Justice Bunyan this morning to answer the charge of keeping a house of ill-fame. Found guilty and sentenced to forty days in the Workhouse.

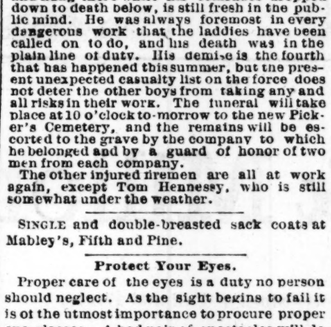

The police are kept pretty busy around the Relay Depot answering the numerous questions and giving the necessary directions to the continual throng from every train pouring in from all points to witness the Veiled Prophets' procession.

Masonic Matters.

Next Monday evening Joseph W. Browne, Postmaster of St. Joseph, Mo., and Grand Master Mason of this State, will arrive in the city, and on Tuesday morning will deliver the annual address to the delegates of the State Grand Lodge, who will assemble at Masonic Hall, Seventh and Market streets, at 10 o'clock on the morning of the day mentioned.

On the evening of the same day the annual session of the Order of the Evening Star of Missouri (a side degree for ladies), will also convene in annual session at the Masonic Hall.

THE FAIR.

Awards in the Arena, and Cattle Premiums.

The Second Day's Attendance Large---List of Awards Made To-Day.

The attendance at the Fair to-day is unparieled for a Tuesday. Yesterday the children ad their day. To-day and to-morrow our ountry cousins hold sway. Thursday they ill be on the grounds to some extent, but that the day of the parents of the children who esterday made this beautiful ground a laugh-g, romping, merry paradise. The city man lady is really to-day an object of interest by ason of his isolation. Sturdy farmers with ack clothes, white hats, thick boots and ddy complexions. Wives of sturdy farmers, so ruddy as to complexion, thick as to boots, ide as to waist and big as to heart, act as scorts to daughters of forms moulded to the ing of Milo, eyes that are stars, complex-ons that are perfection, beauty that is to the orld what the lily is to the field, and sons e newness of whose clothes is apparent as e squeakiness of the new boots is udible, but for all that clear-rained, cool-headed, strong-armed young en of the kind that have made America merica. Then, also, the country couple ounds—description of male and female as oresaid. There are many bridal pairs out ere, in the great country contiguous to St. ouis, where the St. Louis Fair is the e event that outranks all others. To any it is the one bright glimpse the great outside world, and the matrimon-l engagement is in a great many instances med so that the bridal tour can be ade to the Fair. The dry goods d carpet department was closed in all morning, although the association s advertised that the great electric ht display would prevail from 9 a. m. to p. m. daily. The Textile Department is also osed, as the judges are at work. Awards are ing made in the Mechanical Department d in the Agricultural Department to-day. wards in all other departments seem to ve been postponed until to-morrow. The enic exhibition is mainly interesting to far-ers, and they, with their wives, sisters, usins and daughters, are present in the am-itheater to the number of 10,000.

In the Arena.

The second day in the arena, though not oviding as much sport as Monday, was yet n enjoyable one. The attendance was very ood, but did not equal children's day. Every-ing in connection with the arena was placed fine condition. The track was nicely scrap-d and cleaned and in very good condition. multaneously with the introduction into the ena of the mules, specimens of Devon and yrshire cattle were brought in. The first n the programme was the exhibition of best air of mules for farm use, first prize $40, econd $20.

The judges were: Bigby, of Illinois; Spencer, Kentucky, and Davis, of Missouri. James eilly, Broadway and Carr; Jack Rider, roadway and Carr; Henry Nelson, 1511 roadway; J. D. Hicks, Roanoke, Mo.; eilly & Wolffort, city; and J. A. Martin, ity, were the exhibitors. First premium to D. Hicks, second to Reilly & Wolfort.

The mule show afforded the principal amuse ent, their continuous braying in opposition the band producing no little fun and doubt-l music.

Best Pair for Draft—James Reilly, Jack Ri-er, J. D. Hicks, Henry Nelson, Reilly & Wol-rt and J. A. Martin, entries. First premium, e, J. A. Martin; second, $15, Reilly & olfort.

Best Saddle Mule—Entries, James Reilly, ack Rider, John Kune, J. D. Hicks and W. Brown. James Reilly first premium, $25; J. Brown, second, $10.

Best jack of any age—J. B. Retter, Jackson-ille, Ill., first premium. only one entry, 0.

Best jennet of any age.—J. B. Retter made o entries and took both premiums; first 5, second $10.

Draft horses—Stallions four years and over, st premium $100, second $50. Entries— Walter Scott, E. H. Craig, Connecticut. onderful Tom, by Wm. Moffatt & Bro., Paw-w, Ill. Young Crown Prince, D. McKay, ockford, Ill. Rob Roy, C. H. Fuller, Tre-ont, Ill. Jack is a Life, A. Jaffery, Terry ove, Ill. Nogind, E. Dillon, Bloomington, Lancet, E. Dillon. Fabouy, E. Dillon. heri, E. Dillon. Champion, Paul ume, Fulton, Mo. Wild Frenchman, X. hoff, St. Paul, Mo.

MARES AND STALLIONS.

Best mare, four years and over—First prem. m to E. Dillon, Illinois, mare Bouquet, sec-nd to Col. Bates, Josephine. For the best allion in harness there were six entries. irst premium, $50, Wonderful Tom, owned Wm. Moffatt & Bro. Second, $25, Nogind, Dillon.

DRAFT MARES.

For draft mares or geldings; first premium Josephine and Blanche, owned by Bates; econd, Dillon's Bouquet.

The roadsters were next called, to be driven y owner in buggy or wagon, style and action onsidered.

In the mare and gelding class there were wenty-three entries.

Cattle Department.

Judges—Geo. P. Strong, Wm. T. Potts and J. H. Richel.

A number of entries were made in each lass, with the following result:

Dog Show.

The bench show was opened to the public this morning, and was liberally patronized throughout the day. Mr. Charles Lincoln, the superintendent, did all in his power to make the exhibition first-class in every respect, and he certainly succeeded. There are over 200 dogs on exhibition, but some of these will not enter for competition. The two mastiffs from England have arrived, and were kenneled this morning. They are beauties, and are considered to be worth about $500 each. They are certainly fine types of the mastiff dog and bitch, and the principal part of the attention of the visitors is concentrated upon them. Of the Gordon setters there are the two champions, Grouse and Rupert, both splendid specimens. In the English setter class there are three entries, Count Dick, by Druid—Levy; Stafford, by Rake—Dart, and Queen, by Gladstone—Musey. Biddy, by Elcho—Erin, and Erin II., by Elcho—Erin, are the entries in the Irish setter class.

The best display in point of numbers is made in the pointer class. There are over forty bitches and as many dogs, besides a large number of puppies.

ENGLISH SETTERS.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FAIR GROUNDS, October 5.—Class 16, imported English setter dogs; first premium, $25; second, $15; first premium Count Dan, black, white and tan, six years old, by Dan and Countess. Second, A. H. Moore's black, white and ten, three years old, Rhoderick, by Count Dick. Phantom Duke, by imported sire and dam, highly recommended.

Class 17, imported English setter bitches—First premium, black, white and tan Räsymour, twenty months, by Paris and Pearl, A. H. Moore; second black, white and tan Dashing Model, two years, by Dash and Countess Moll, A. H. Moore.

Class 18, native English setter dogs—First premium, black and white-ticked Grand Duke, three years, by Carlowitz and Lucy, W. L. Timberlake, St. Paul; second, white, black and tan Daniel the Prophet, 17 months, by Dan and Nell, James Hennessy, Cleveland, O. Highly recommended, Dan, by Mack and Belle, F. Mansfield, St. Louis.

Class 19, native English setter bitcher--First black, white and tan, sixteen months, Peep-o'-day, by Gladstone and Clip, D. Bryson, Memphis, Tenn; second, orange and white Blossom, eighteen months, by Vane and Nellie, S. A. Kaye, St. Louis.

Class 20, English setters, puppy dogs under twelve months—First, black and white Penn II., by Penn and Malta, A. C. Waddell, Topeka, Kansas.

Opened.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FAIR GROUNDS, October 5.—The dry goods and carpet hall opened at 2:30 with full electric light effects. The throng there is crushing.

Awards for Beer.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FAIR GROUNDS, October 5.—The Excelsior Brewing Company have taken first prize on bottled beer; W. J. Lemp, second. Still wines will be awarded to-morrow instead of to-day.

Systematic Robbery.

DENVER, COL., October 5.—A systematic robbery of the Kansas Pacific Road which has been going on several months has just been unearthed by the detectives, and the principal conspirators, three conductors and a baggage master, are arrested. Their scheme was to sell bogus tickets over the Kansas Pacific Road, cautioning purchasers to leave Denver on a certain train, thereby taking them through to Kansas City under the supervision of the three conductors engaged in the conspiracy. The amount stolen is unknown.

CARONDELET JOTTINGS.

Capt. Kennett and eight of his staff are assigned to special duty in the city to-night.

Street cars will be stationed at the Wild Hunter to-night to accommodate persons returning from the city. They will be started as fast as occupied. A car will leave the junction at 2:10.

A special train will leave Union Depot to-night at 11 o'clock for Fredericktown, stopping at the Carondelet stations. Trains will also leave Plum street at 1 and 2 o'clock to-night for this part of the city.

Drawings for the new passenger depot and office buildings of the St., I. L. M. and S. R. R. to be located at Stein street are completed. The building will be a two-story brick and beside passenger accommodations there will be special apartments for business offices. The removal of the depot from Taylor street will be in many respects a very great improvement.

There will be many features of interest connected with the building of the Stein street elevator. In order to obtain a sufficient depth of water for steamboats and barges, it is necessary to extend the elevator some distance from the shore. There is a foundation of solid rock covered by water sweeping over it with such velocity as to prevent any sand or accumulations of any kind upon it. On this rock foundation the elevator will be built. In order to do this a dam will be built in the river around the site of the elevator and the water pumped from the inside into the river. The water where the dam is to be built is, at the present stage, twenty-two feet in depth, and the volume of water to be pumped out renders it a work in that respect alone of considerable magnitude.

Schneeble Bros. are about to build a one-story brick structure to be used as a jelly factory, on the north side of Talcot street, near Front street, the cost of which will be $700.

I. H. Pritchett was to-day granted permission to erect a two-story building to cost $3,000, on the west side of Webster street between Vineyard and Division streets.

A three-story brick building to be used as a soda factory is being built by Henry Rooke. It will cost about $2,800, and will be situated on the south side of Barry street, between Carondelet avenue and Jackson street.

MONEY.

An "off day," with the activity of yesterday not apparent in local banking, but from now on it is expected there will be a goodbusiness transacted. Just at the present there is plenty of money in bankers' hands, and consequently borrowers find no difficulty in obtaining all they want on good paper, but discount rates are firm at 8 per cent on time and 5@6 per cent on call. The demand for money was moderate to day from all branches of trade, mercantile, manufacturing, commercial, etc., and rather a small amount of paper discounted. Shipments of currency were liberal, most of it going to the West and Southwest. New York exchange scarce, and firmer in consequence, with sales at 50@75c discount per $1,000.

Robert E. M. Bain, Foreign Exchange, 104 N. On 'Change.

The attendance to-day was large, owing to the great influx of strangers to the city. The floor of the Exchange was crowded and a scene of life and bustle presented that was truly inspiring. Preparations for the ball—decorating the hall with plants, banners, etc.—went on busily, and above the din of trade and traffic arose the sound of the hammer and saw of the workmen engaged in getting the hall in shape.

Just now the wheat market is in such an "onsartin" state that most of the boys are either on the fence or badly rattled. They don't know whether to buy or sell, and jump around with each turn in the market like chestnuts over a hot fire. Numerous are the conferences with brokers and "points" are badly wanted. The St. Louis crowd have been "bears" so long that the recent advance caught most of them on the short and wrong side. About the time they think the long side is the best, they very likely will discover that it isn't. Chicago operators are said to be as badly mixed, and the market is said to be in the hands of scalpers. A Chicago gentleman, who was on 'Change to-day, states that wheat has strong friends in that market, most of the heavy houses believing in still higher prices.

MORNING BOARD.

Flour—Steady and firm; demand good, mainly for better grades, and supply scant. Offerings of fancy brands inadequate—mills all sold ahead. We quote: Fancy $5 20@5 50; choice $4 80@4 95; family $4 55 4 70; xxx $4 20@4 40; xx $3 60@3 85; x $3 25@3 40; superfine $2 85@3 00; fine $2 50 @2 75.

Wheat—The strength and excitement that characterized yesterday's market did not show up to-day, but on the contrary weakness and depression were the chief features. A strong feeling prevailed early, but later became weak and at the close prices were lower. Cash No. 2 red sold exclusively to speculators at 96⅜ early to 95⅛ at close; October ranged from 96⅜ to 95⅞; November 98⅜@97⅛, closing at 97⅜c; December from 90⅛c to 98⅛c; year from 96⅛c to 95⅞c. Shippers and millers took No. 3 at 91⅛c East side and 91@91⅛c this side, the former class buying No. 4 at 87¼@87⅛c and rejected at 81c. Mediterranean sold to millers at 95@94c for No. 2 and 90⅛c for No. 3.

Corn—Weak and lower, with unfavorable advices received, while the demand was small and indifferent. No. 2 mixed sold quietly at 38⅞c for cash, 38⅞@38⅜c for November, 38⅞@⅜c for December—later 38⅛c asked—38⅛c for the year and 43⅛c for May. No. 2 white-mixed scarce and steady at 43c. Rejected brought 37⅛c.

Oats—Weakness prevailed and the tendency was downward, operators showing a desire to sell that fully equaled their efforts to buy yesterday. Cash No. 2 sold to feed and order dealers at 29⅜@29⅛c, closing with sellers at the lowest rate; November brought 30⅞ to 26⅞; December 30⅞ to 30⅞ and May 34⅛; 29⅞ asked for October and 29 bid for the year. Rejected salable at 28 and No. 2 white at 30.

Rye was firm and in demand, but scarce. No. 2 sold at 84½@85c, and 79c was bid for rejected.

Provisions were depressed and lower, with hardly enough doing to establish market values. Pork sold at $16 in job lots. Lard was not salable above 7⅞. Dry salt meats quotable at 5.15 for shoulders, 8.15 for clear ribs and 8.40 for short clear 30-day cure, but younger meats offered lower. Bacon—short clear sold at 9⅞ to 9 and clear ribs at 8⅞; shoulders worth about 5⅞.

Produce.

LEAD—Steady. Soft Mo. at $4 62½.

WOOL—Quiet and unchanged. We quote: Tub washed—Choice 43@45; medium 39@41; dingy and low 36@38c. Unwashed—Combing 27@28½c; coarse 24@26; choice medium 26@27; low do 23@24; fine merino (light) 22@23; heavy do 16@18; burry, black and cotted 5@15 ₩ cent off. Southern bury 12½@13.

TIMOTHY SEED—In demand. Sales at $2 to $2 26½.

HIDES—Market quiet and weak. We quote: No. 1 greensalted 9¼c; damaged do 8¼c; partly cured 8@8¼; damaged do 7@7¼; bulls and stags—green salted 6@6¼; green 5@5¼; green salted calf 12@12½. No. 1 dry salted 14c; damaged do 12@12½. No 1 dry flint 18; No. 2 do 15½c. Branded 10 per cent off from price of No. 1.

HIGHWINES—Steady at $1 10.

CASTOR BEANS—Salable at $1 43.

TALLOW—Prime 5¼@5⅜c.

BEESWAX—Prime to choice 20@21½c.

FEATHERS—Steady. We quote: Prime live geese 47@48c, top rate for small sacks; No. 2 do 40@44c; poor to good mixed 15@35c as in quality; tare 3 per cent on large sacks, 10 on small.

CATTLE—Grass Texans were selling quite readily this morning at unchanged prices, that is, fair to good. Thin and light mixed Texans were a little dull of disposal at slightly lower prices. Mixed native butcher stuff was slow, and the moderate supply hard to work off at the prices of yesterday. In fact, local speculators and interior shippers were the only buyers. The canners are pretty well filled with stock and were not very anxious to enter the market. Total offerings fair, but the bulk again consisted of medium to fair grass Texan cattle. Eastern shippers did not show much life, and the scant offerings of good and fancy native steers were no disappointment to them. As reports from New York and other points are still unfavorable to the buying interests stock and feeding steers are dull. Yesterday afternoon there was but little doing. Ruling quotations quiet.

State of Missouri, City of St. Louis. ss.
Office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court City of St. Louis.
In Vacation after June Term. 1880.
Saturday, August 28, 1880.
Laura T. Mellier and Albin Mellier
vs.
Ida R. Taylor, Adolph C. Taylor, George R. Taylor, Theresa M. Taylor, Louisa K. Taylor, Agnes R. Taylor, Walter C. Taylor and John Maguire, executor of the estate of George R. Taylor, deceased.

The plaintiffs come by their attorney and file a petition herein, duly verified by affidavit, from which it appears that the defendants Theresa M. Taylor, Agnes R. Taylor and Walter C. Taylor have absented themselves from their usual places of abode in this State, so that the ordinary process of law cannot be served upon them; wherefore it is ordered that said defendants be notified that a civil action has been commenced against them, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a decree in equity to reform and correct a certain deed executed by George R. Taylor on or about December 2, 1879, conveying to plaintiff, Laura T. Mellier, by the name of Laura T. Taylor, nee Paul, the following certain lot, tract or parcel of land, lying, being and situate in the city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, to-wit:

Situated in block number 1991 of the city of St. Louis, more particularly described as follows, to-wit:

Beginning at a point in the north line of Locust street, distant westwardly one hundred and one feet and one-half an inch from the southwest corner of lot 14 of block No. 57 of Stoddard's addition, running thence northwardly parallel to the west line of lot No 14, and partly along the west line of a triangular parcel of ground conveyed by George R. Taylor to Sylvester Waterhouse, and partly along the east line of a triangular shaped parcel of ground conveyed by Sylvester Waterhouse to George R. Taylor by deed recorded in book 608, page 467, one hundred and thirty-four feet ten inches to a point in the south line of an alley fifteen feet wide; thence westwardly along the south line of said alley fifty feet to a point: thence southwardly and parallel to the east line of said lot herein before described, one hundred and thirty-four feet nine and five-eighths inches to a point in the north line of Locust street; thence eastwardly along said north line of Locust street fifty feet, to the place of beginning; by inserting and substituting on said deed the name "Laura T. Mellier," in lieu and instead of the name "Laura T. Taylor, nee Paul."

And unless they appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis, within and for the city of St. Louis, on the first Monday of December next, and on or before the third day thereof, answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against them as confessed.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published according to law in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, a newspaper printed and published in the city of St. Louis.

Witness my hand and seal of the Circuit Court City of St. Louis, this 28th day of August, 1880.

vs.
Frederick Schwartz, James Bissell, Robert A. Barnes, Virginia Bissell and George R. Bissell, her husband, Eugene Bissell, Catherine Bissell, Cora R. Bissell, Louis H. Bissell and Annie Haight Bissell.
Before Justice P. J. Taaffe, of the Fifth District of the City of St. Louis, Mo.
Case No. 78. August issues, 1880.

The co-defendants in the above entitled cause, Frederick Schwartz, James Bissell, Virginia Bissell, and George R. Bissell, her husband, Eugene Bissell, Catherine Bissell, Cora R. Bissell, Louis H. Bissell and Annie Haight Bissell, having been returned "not found" by Constable James Carroll, of the Fifth District, of the city of St. Louis, Mo., to whom the summons in the above case had been issued, and it appearing from plaintiff's affidavit, that the aforesaid co-defendants are non-residents of the State of Missouri, it is, therefore, on motion of plaintiff, ordered that said co-defendants be notified that a civil action has been commenced against them, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a special judgment in favor of Leopold Schmalz, the plaintiff herein, for the sum of thirty-nine dollars and eighty-two cents ($39 82) with interest thereon from the 15th day of November, 1878, at the rate of 15 per cent per annum, by reason of a special tax bill (number 12,193) issued by the President of the Board of Public Improvements of the city of St. Louis against the followings described real estate, situate and lying in the city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, to-wit:

Lot No. —— in city block No. 2,446, said ground having an aggregate front of 120 feet by a depth of 331.54 feet, bounded north by Grand avenue, east by Allen's estate, south by Orrick and west by Wyerth.

And unless they be and appear before the above named Justice, P. J. Taaffe, duly elected for and residing within the Fifth District, composed of the First and Seventeenth Wards of the City of St. Louis, Missouri, on the seventeenth day of November, A. D. 1880, at the hour of 12 o'clock noon, at his office, No. 605 Chestnut street in the aforesaid Fifth District, then and there to answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against them as confessed.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published according to law in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, a newspaper printed and published in the aforesaid city of St. Louis.

Given under my hand this —— day of September, A. D. 1880.

Sheriff's Sales.

SHERIFF'S SALE.—By virtue and authority of an execution issued from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court at the City of St. Louis, returnable to the October Term, 1880, of said Court, and to me directed, in favor of Isaiah V. Williamson and against Robert S. Carr, I have levied upon and seized all the right, title and interest of Robert S. Carr, the defendant, in and to the following described real estate, to-wit:

A lot or parcel of land with the improvements thereon, lying in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, more particularly described as follows: The east twenty feet of lot eight, and the west twenty feet of lot nine, of block number 920 of said city, having an aggregate front of forty feet on the north line of Olive street by a depth of one hundred and nine feet, more or less, to an alley dividing said block, and bounded north by said alley, east by Miltenberger, or the east five feet of lot number nine of said block, south by Olive street, and west by Miltenberger, or the west five feet of lot number eight of said block, the east line of said lot lying two hundred and fifty-five feet west of the western line of Twenty-third street.

Also, a lot of land with the improvements thereon, situated in the city of St Louis, State of Missouri, to wit: Said lot having a front of 19 feet 1½ inches, more or less, on the south side of Wash street, in city block number 945, by a depth of 155 feet 3 inches, more or less, to an alley dividing said block, and more particularly described as follows: The west 9 feet 1½ inches of lot 27, and east 10 feet of lot 26 in said block, and bounded north by Wash street, east by east 15 feet 8½ inches of lot 27 of said block, south by alley dividing said block, west by west 15 feet of lot 26 of said block, or the center line of the partition wall between houses number 1906 and 1908 Wash street.

And I will, on
MONDAY, THE 11TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1880,
between the hours of nine o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the east front door of the Court-house, in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, sell at public auction, for cash, to the highest bidder, all the right, title, interest, claim, estate and property of the above named Robert S. Carr, said defendant, of, in and to the above described property, to satisfy said execution and costs.

SHERIFF'S SALE.—By virtue and authority of a special execution issued from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court at the City of St. Louis, returnable to the October term, 1880, of said court, and to me directed, wherein the State of Missouri, at the relation and to the use of Myer A. Rosenblatt, Collector of the city of St. Louis, in the State of Missouri, is plaintiff, and Thomas F. Smith and Rozel Weissinger, trustee of said Thomas F. Smith, are defendants, I have levied upon and seized the following described real estate, situated in the city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, and charged with the lien of tax bill on which this action is founded, and described in said execution as follows, to-wit:

1st. A lot of ground in city block 500 of said city, said lot being 60 feet in front on Pine street, by 109.4 feet deep, bounded on the north by Pine street, east by Thirteenth street, south by an alley, and on the west by Hagar.

2d. A lot of ground in city block 420 of said city, said lot being 90 feet in front on Seventh street, by 107.6 feet deep, bounded on the north by Gratiot street, east by Seventh street, south by Holmes, and on the west by Goldsoll.

3d. A lot of ground in city block 419 of said city, said lot being 160 feet front on Eighth street, by 127.6 feet deep, bounded on the north by De Menil, east by alley, south by Ford, and on the west by Eighth street.

4th. A lot of ground in city block 161 of said city, said lot being 25 feet front on Fifth street, by 128.4 feet deep, bounded north by Larned, east by Fifth street, south by Jaccard, and west by an alley.

And I will, on THURSDAY, THE 28TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1880
between the hours of nine o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the east front door of the Court-house, in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, sell at public auction, for cash, to the highest bidder, the above described property, charged with said lien, to satisfy said execution and costs.

Sheriff's Sales.

SHERIFF'S SALE.—By virtue and authority of an execution issued from the office of the Clerk of the Probate Court at the City of St. Louis, returnable to the December term, 1880, of said court, and to me directed, in favor of Francisca Vogel (now Franhaga) and Frederick Franhaga, her husband, legatee, and against Augusta Fogel, executrix of Clemens Fogel, deceased, I have levied upon and seized the following described real estate, situate in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, to-wit:

1st. Parcel of lot D, of subdivision of Gimblin estate, and parcel of a strip of ground adjoining said lot D on the east, beginning in the east line of Bellefontaine road, 152 '5 north from the southwest corner of lot D, thence north along said east line 60 feet 8 inches to the southwest corner of lot of Pluempe, thence east along the south line of Pluempe 137 feet, more or less, to west line of lot No. 1 of P. R. Kenrick's addition to Baden, thence along said west line of said lot 1 southward 60 feet 8 inches, and thence west along the north line of lot of Overmann 185 feet, more or less, to the beginning point.

2d. Parcel of both lot D and a strip beginning on the east line of Bellefontaine road at a point distant north of said southwest corner of said lot D 243 feet and 1 inch, and at the northwest corner of lot of Pluempe, thence north along the east line of the Bellefontaine road 58 feet 10 inches to the southwest corner of lot of Duerker, thence east along the south line of said last-mentioned lot 140 feet, more or less, to the west line of lot 1 of P. R. Kenrick's addition to Baden, thence with said west line of said lot 1 south 58 feet 10 inches to a point due east of beginning point, thence west on a straight line 140 feet, more or less, to the point of beginning.

3d. A strip of ground about 30 feet long from north to south, and about fifteen feet in width from east to west, lying between the east line of lot of Pluempe and west line of lot No. 1 of Kenrick' addition to Baden, and the north and south line of lot of Pluempe extended due east to west line of said lot 1 of Kenrick's addition to Baden.

4th. Lot 1 of P. R. Kenrick's addition to Baden, 146 feet 4 inches front on Bittner avenue and a depth on its easterly line of 140 feet 7½ inches with a width on its northern end of 55 feet 6 3-7 inches.

And I will, on
MONDAY, THE 11TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1880,
between the hours of nine o clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the east front door of the Court-house, in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, sell at public auction, for cash, to the highest bidder, all the right, title, interest, claim, estate and property of the above named Augusta Fogel, now Guild, of, in and to the above described property, to satisfy said execution and costs.

Orders of Publication.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

Before John M. Young, Justice of the Peace for the Fifth District of the city of St. Louis.
Martha J. Sweringen
vs.
Thomas S. Manahan et al.

The Constable having returned that Thomas S. Manahan, defendant in the above entitled suit, is not found, on motion of plaintiff by her attorney, it is ordered that said defendant Manahan be notified that a civil action of unlawful detainer has been commenced against him and the other defendants, subtenants under him, the object and general nature of which is to obtain possession of a certain lot of ground and the improvements thereon, situated in block No. 96 of the city of St. Louis, fronting forty feet on Fourth street, by a depth, with same width, of 90 feet to an alley, bounded north by Green street, east by Fourth street, south by lot formerly belonging to Moreland, west by said alley; together with judgment for $1,950 back rent, and three hundred dollars rent per month from August 15, 1880, and also for $500 damages for unlawfully withholding said premises, being the same property formerly leased to said Manahan by said plaintiff.

And unless he appear before me on FRIDAY, THE 8TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1880, at 9 o'clock a. m., and show cause why judgment for possession, rent and damages should not be rendered against him, the same will be so rendered.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published according to law in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, a daily newspaper published within the city of St. Louis, Missouri.

A true copy from the record.
Witness my hand this 29th day of September, 1880. JOHN M. YOUNG,

POPHETS' PARADE.

The Dazzling Procession of the Veiled Seers this Evening.

Synopsis of the Subjects Illustrated by the Floats.

Route of the Prophetic Crewe--Regulations Regarding the Ball.

The day, or the night rather, for the grand nocturnal illustrated pageant of the Veiled Prophets has at last almost arrived. At half-past 7 o'clock this evening, after the boom of cannon and a bouquet of rockets, the doors of the den will be swung back and the procession, the grandest one ever given in the country, will issue from its mysterious quarters. The Veiled Prophets year after year have thronged the city with thousands of guests who have come from great distances to be present at the city's carnival. Hotel accommodations and private houses have been taxed to their last capacity, and the town is to-day gorged to utmost repletion with good company. The route of the pageant is given below, and it would be safe to venture that there never were more people massed along the streets than will mark this evening's procession. In the different places where the fireworks display will be given the rivers of people will be lakes, seas of upturned faces. The central idea of to-night's pageant is a visit of Helios (the sun) and Odin, the Norse god, to the Veiled Prophet, and with such distinguished guests no less a cortege than the following could by any means be expected:

1. Aurora.
2. The Nomadic Era.
3. Spring Land.
4. Spring Life.
5. The May Queen.
6. Flora.
7. Egyptian Summer.
8. Alhambra.
9. Summer Land.
10. Rustic Sunshine.
11. Autumn Land.
12. Greek Autumn.
13. Demeter.
14. Age of Chivalry.
15. Autumn Princes.
16. The Farmer's Joy.
17. Winter's Night, or the Fates.
18. Grotto of Sigurd.
19. War in Winter.
20. Peace in Winter.
21. The Arctic.
22. The Frost King.

FIRST FLOAT.

The first tableau is that of Aurora, goddess of the dawn, in robes of white and with golden hair streaming down her back, drawn in Phœbus' car by winged steeds caparisoned in gold, and attended by the Titan Astræos and the productive winds Notos, Zephyros and Hesperos, who go before as heralds of the goddess' approach. Behind speeds the fleet-footed Hesperos. The chariot wheels roll continuously over silver and golden clouds. Behind the chariot is the big full-orbed glowing sun.

SECOND FLOAT.

The second float is a patriarchal scene laid in far away Asia, and is entitled "The Nomadic Era." The beautiful Rebecca is drawing the crystal water from a well to slake the thirst of the travel-worn merchant Jacob, who has just alighted from an elegantly caparisoned camel. Still other beauteous water-bearers are about just leaving with their jars upon their heads. All the figures are attired in Oriental robes of surpassing richness. Over the ancient well spreads a wide, inviting palm tree.

THIRD FLOAT.

The third tableau is also an Eastern one, but it is of entirely different character. It is a Japanese springtime. The chariot is covered all over with the beautiful emblems and tokens of spring. It is a pagoda finished in the brightest colors and glistening with ornaments. Within the pagoda sits a gorgeously-attired mandarin drinking the invigorating tea. On the front of the float is an arched bridge over a fair stream and two lovers upon it, and still other figures riding in an odd three-wheeled carriage. Under the bridge is a Japanese pleasure boat. Lanterns hang over the bridge and upon the pagoda, while beautiful flowers grow from the ground.

FOURTH FLOAT.

The fourth float is typical of industry and is represented by the busy bee. A straw hive enclosed in flowers and on a firm support is surrounded with bees. The whole is of fine design, grouping together the domestic treasures. Erom eggs in a turkey nest two young gobblers are emerging into day. The whole is indicative of the farmyard and lively industry.

FIFTH FLOAT.

The spring is concluded with the fifth tableau, a rustic May Queen. On a high throne sits the crowned queen of May, while below and about stand little children appropriately customed and pictures of health, holding garlands about the queen and strewing her path with flowers. Festoons of early flower are strung about the throne in profusion, forming graceful arches and sweet surroundings for the queen.

SIXTH FLOAT.

Summer enters the brilliant course with the sixth float, representing Flora's court. High under a white marble Grecian arch the lovely goddess, robed in a flowing white garment, stands surrounded by her worshippers. The lovely temple is a labyrinth of flowers, and the happy attendant worships the goddess from a floor carpeted with the brightest brauties that have ever bloomed. Along the sides of the float, tastefully hang heavy wreaths on appropriate boundary for the sweet enclosure.

SEVENTH FLOAT.

The seventh representation, an Egyptian bark, has all the mildness of an Italian sky. The scene is Cleopatra, the beautiful queen, sailing down the smooth waters of the Nile to make conquest of the sturdy Roman soldiers. Under the canopy at the end of the barge sits the beautiful Egyptian queen, attended by Mark Antony and her maid. On the prow stands the pilot directing the course and near by the captain commanding the rowers, the splash of whose oars it seems could be heard, so peaceful is the scene. In the middle of the barge and before the canopy are the harpers and lute players.

EIGHTH FLOAT.

Moorish magnificence in its palmiest days is presented in the eighth float. The Alhambra, with all its elegant architecture, its mellow hues and delicate tints, the crystal fountain and its sparkling showers, the solid column tipped with gold, the palatial splendor, is all preserved. On a rich divan sits a figure surrounded by others, all arrayed in elegance becoming the scene, and exhibited with all possible correctness.

NINTH FLOAT.

"Summer Land" is the ninth scene. A rural modern summer. It is located in a large tree top where the birds are gaily chirruping in the balmy summer. On the top branch the American eagle spreads its wings and screams out its cry for liberty.

TENTH FLOAT.

The tenth tableau presents the manifold beauties of midsummer. There is every variety of landscape; a waterfall in the background, overhanging trees, water lilies, wreathed foliage and grapevines and flowers innumerable. The figures are a pair of lovers sighing in a shady bower and making sonnets to each other's eyebrows. They are in a boat which, oarless, is drifting idly down the stream. Other lovers feast on the ripe fruits while seated on the bright river bank.

ELEVENTH FLOAT.

The eleventh tableau is a vision of the golden Autumn land. It is a tribute to vintage and ripe husbandry. There are Bacchus and his constant attendants, Comus, Momus and Selenus, indulging in a revel, while the plenteous urn goes around and the gold goblet is filled again and again with the sweet ferment of the grape. In the centre is an immense wine jar twenty-five feet high, and all over its sides hang clusters of luscious grapes and leaves intertwined. It is the season of universal generosity.

TWELFTH FLOAT.

The twelfth tableau is a Greek scene—a glimpse of the Court of Pericles. It is also an autumn visioh, the autumn of Greek civilization. There is a piece of unfinished architecture, a tablier resting upon columns of granite, while around are strewn blocks of the same. Queen Aspasia sits at the base of one column attended by her court. Near by is the great sculptor Phidias displaying a model of his statue of Demeter.

THIRTEENTH FLOAT.

Upon the thirteenth float is represented Phidias instructing three of his workmen in the work of finishing a statue of Demeter. The Grecian Goddess is represented as holding a basket of fruit in one hand and a sheaf of wheat in the other.

FOURTEENTH FLOAT.

This car, which is supposed to be an illustration of the chivalric feelings which animated manhood during the mediæval ages, presents a most realistic representation of St. George, clad in golden mail and mounted on a fiery charger, handsomely caparisoned, meeting the dragon emerging from his cavern and about to seize the maiden, who is rescued by the knight.

FIFTEENTH FLOAT.

Upon this float, which is illustrative of Autumn, is vividly represented a most picturesque scene. A rickety fence runs over a brook between an ancient tree and the stump of a decayed oak. Behind the stump, on a toad stool, sits a toad. An attenuated grasshopper stands erect upon the stump, while a couple of bugs have straddled the fence. On a mound near by a cricket chirps right merrily.

SIXTEENTH FLOAT.

The sixteenth float is typical of the husbandman's glorious harvest time and is a beautiful representation of a charming pastoral scene. The bounteous earth has yielded up her wealth and he is now enjoying with gusto the juice of the generous grape. The scene presented is supposed to be an illustration of the acme of rustic contentment and happiness.

SEVENTEENTH FLOAT.

The next car is illustrative of the frosty slumber of winter between the ripe fullness of autumn and the awakening seed time of the returning spring. It is a beautiful scenic representation of the idea intended to be conveyed and presents beneath a clear, starry moonlight firmanent the mythological sisters known as the Fates. One holds the distaff, another spins the thread, which is cut asunder by the third. In mythology the sisters are known as Clotho, Lachesis and Atropos.

EIGHTEENTH FLOAT.

One of the most elaborate of the cars is the eighteenth, upon which is represented the grotto of Sigurd, the hero of Norse mythology. A radiant palace of ice and light is exhibited, within whose precincts none but the present worshippers of frost and fire are admitted.

NINETEENTH FLOAT.

The nineteenth float in the procession represents a scene so well known to every one at all conversant with the history of the American Revolution—Washington Crossing the Delaware—that it is unnecessary to enter into a description of it. It is sufficient to say that this memorable event is pictured in a manner calculated to awaken the enthusiasm of the spectators.

TWENTIETH FLOAT.

The twentieth tableau is a contrasting picture to the nineteenth and is entitled "Autumn in Peace." There is a bleak hill all snow-covered, with a bleak and gnarled old tree upon its summit. Down its steep sides boys indulge in the merriment of coasting. A beautiful sledge drawn by reindeer has been upset and its load of laughing young men and women are floundering in the drifting snow. The deer have escaped and are far away, scouring over the white glistening plain.

TWENTY-FIRST FLOAT.

Upon this float is a representation of the extreme frigidity of the Arctic Regions. The scene is admirably designed and executed, and gives to the beholder a vivid conception of the Polar Regions. The Polar bear and the invaluable seal are among the most prominent features of this tableau.

TWENTY-SECOND FLOAT.

The closing tableau of this most magnificent pageant is "The Frost King." It is essentially Norse in its treatment and significance. An immense hoary head is crowned with ice; yes, almost with ice-bergs. Up through the long, stiff and frozen beard scramble fur-covered men. The tableau is typical of power struggling up into existence through the frozen masses. Around the head glows the splendor of the aurora borealis, warming it into life and existence.

Route of the Procession.

OFFICE CHIEF POLICE, ST. LOUIS, October 2, 1880.—Special Notice—In pursuance of the preamble and resolutions adopted by the Municipal Assembly, apropos of the Veiled Prophets' pageant, the Board of Police Commissioners direct that the subjoined streets, namely: From Chestnut and Twelfth to Pine and Twelfth; thence to Pine and Twentieth, thence to Twentieth and Washington avenue; thence to Washington avenue and Fourth; thence to Fourth and Myrtle; thence to Myrtle and Fifth; thence to Fifth and Washington avenue; thence to Washington avenue and Third street; thence to Third and Market—the route of the Veiled Prophets—be kept free from vehicles of all kinds, and that the sidewalks be also freed from all obstructions, in order that pedestrains may have a safe and unimpeded view of the pageant, and that the procession itself may have no interruption in its progress.

Olive street, from Fifth to Third: Pine street, from Fifth to Second; Chestnut street, from Sixth to Second, and Market street, from Fifth to Second, must also be kept free from all vehicles except moving carriages passing to and from the Merchants' Exchange.

The Merchants' Exchange can only be approached by carriages from the north, on Fourth and Third streets; from the west, on Pine and Chestnut streets.

All vehicles must be confined to the several street crossings not enumerated above.

The police are instructed to rigidly enforce these orders. JAMES MCDONOUGH, Chief of Police.

THE BALL.

Entrances—Dress—Carriages—Calling for Guests.

The following orders are issued by the Reception Committee for the information and guidance of those who expect to attend the grand ball of the Veiled Prophets at the Merchants' Exchange on Tuesday evening, October 5:

ORDERS.

Doors will be open at 9 p. m. No one admitted to the building before that hour.

ENTRANCES.

Guests may enter at the Fourth street, Pine street and Third street entrances. The Chestnut street entrance will be closed to guests until after the Prophets shall have entered the building. Guards will be placed at each entrance to the building, and no one will be permitted to enter unless provided with a ticket. Tickets must be shown at the entrance and again at the door of the hall, where a corner will be torn off and the ticket returned to the owner.

An interval of thirty minutes will occur between the time the Prophets enter the building and the grand entree in the hall, in order that the guests may have ample time to arrive.

Persons leaving the ball-room will be given a check, and will show their torn ticket and check also before being permitted to re-enter.

Each ticket will be carefully scrutinized to see that it is presented by the proper party.

Guests will bear in mind that tickets are absolutely not transferable, and must be presented only by the party to whom they are issued.

Should any person be found in the hall who has not been invited and whose name is not on the list furnished this committee, they will be required to leave by persons employed for that purpose.

Gentlemen unattended by ladies will not be admitted to the floor until after the entree and promenade of the Prophets, but will necessarily be required to go into the gallery until after the grand entree.

Gentlemen and ladies will be admitted to the hall by the central doors only.

Gentlemen will not be allowed to occupy seats in the hall until after the grand entree. All seats will be reserved for ladies. Gentlemen are requested to observe this rule strictly.

DRESS.

Ladies are expected to attend in full dress, and those wearing hats or bonnets will be required to go into the gallery. Ladies wearing hats or bonnets will not be permitted to dance.

Gentlemen will be required to attend in full dress. Any member of a military organization who may have received an invitation, and who desires to wear his uniform, will be permitted to do so.

After the Grand March of the Prophets a carpet will be laid for dancing and to protect ladies' dresses.

Rooms 205, 206, 207, 209, 210, 211, 212, 213 and 214, on Exchange floor, will be used as gentlemen's coat-rooms.

Room 215 as gentlemen's dressing-room.

Room 202 will be the headquarters of the Reception Committee.

The secretary's office will be the cloak-room for ladies, and ladies will enter their cloak-room through the main hall, turning to the right immediately after entering the hall.

The reading rooms will be used as a ladies' dressing-room, where attendants will be in waiting.

Paid attendants will be provided in dressing and coat rooms, and they will not be permitted to receive any compensation from guests.

CARRIAGES

bringing guests at the Pine street entrance will approach from the west and drive off east as far as Second street before turning; at the Fourth street entrance will approach from the north, facing south, and drive off to the south as far as Market street before turning; at the Third street entrance will approach from the north before the procession arrives, and drive off to the south as far as Market street before turning.

Each driver will be given a check and number, and a duplicate of same will be handed the occupant, and the carriage will be known by this number only for the evening.

CALLING FOR GUESTS.

Carriages will come to the Fourth street and Third street entrances only; will face south and drive off to the south. It will save confusion if guests will instruct their drivers at which door to call for them.

No vehicles facing north will be permitted on Fourth street between Olive and Market streets.

No vehicle facing west will be permitted on Fourth street between Olive and Market street.

No vehicle facing north will be permitted on Third street between Olive and Market.

No vehicle facing west will be permitted on Chestnut street, between Fifth and Second streets.

Policemen will see that these orders are rigidly carried out and no carriage permitted to unload unless facing properly.

Guests will please instruct their drivers how to drive in and how to drive off, and thus save much confusion.

If persons who expect to attend the ball will read these rules carefully, and regard them, they will save themselves and the committee much trouble.

E. C. SIMMONS, Chairman Reception Committee.

THE MUSIC.

The music for the ball will be supplied by Joe Postlewaite's orchestra of twenty-six pieces. Mr. P. will be assisted by Prof. B. Vogel, of the Grand Opera-house. Postlewaite has composed for this special occasion a grand march in honor of the Veiled Prophets, which will be played on the entrance of the procession into the grand hall of the Chamber of Commerce.

The New York Epizooty.

From the New York Sun, 2nd.

The fact that the epizootic epidemic now raging among the car and stage horses is assuming a more dangerous form was admitted yesterday at the large stables. At the Third, Sixth and Eighth avenue car stables, and at the Madison, Ninth and Fifth avenue stage stables many horses have a green, mucuous discharge from the nose and suffer an extreme languor. These horses were still on the road yesterday, and the veterinary surgeons in all the large stables have decided to work the horses as long as they are strong enough to stand. They say that, if allowed to remain inactive, hard-worked horses lose their appetite and fall an easy prey to the disease. But if worked, horses will usually eat, and thus generate strength to combat with the disease. The Sixth avenue and the Grand street and Bleecker street lines had but little trouble with their horses up to yesterday, when nearly one-half of their animals were found to be suffering with the disorder. At the stables of the Fifth, Madison and Ninth avenue stage lines not a horse is to be found that is not afflicted.

At first attempts were made in all the large stables to establish hospitals, in order to separate more carefully the sick from the well animals. The epizooty, however, governed as it is by athmospheric conditions, made the same progress as before, and the hospital plan was abandoned. As each stage driver mounted his box yesterday morning he was instructed to drive very slowly. During the day many teams gave out before completing their usual two trips, and were replaced by animals suffering like themselves, but fresher. In the stage stables yesterday there was an almost constant chorus of coughing. In the Second and Third avenue stables attempts were made to clear out the nostrils of the affected animals by making them sneeze. No marked change for the better had been noticed, however, up to last evening.

AN AUTUMN PICTURE.

Sky deep, intense and wondrous blue,
With clouds that sail the heavens through;
And mountain slopes so broad and fair,
With here and there among the green
A maple or an ash-tree seen
In glowing color, bright and rare.

Green fields, where silvery ripples fade,
With cattle resting in the shade;
Far mountains, touched with purple haze
That like a veil of morning mist,
By gleams of golden sunlight kissed,
Seems but a breath of by-gone days.

And clover which has bloomed anew
Since shining scythes cut it through,
And corn fields with their harvest fair,
And golden-rod upon the hill,
And purple asters blooming still,
And sunlight melted into air.

CATCHING FLOATERS.

The Ghastly Business Pursued Along the River Front.

Dead Men that Are Never Heard of, and What Becomes of Them.

The ways and means of keeping body and soul together employed in large cities are numerous. One of the most curious and ghastly lines of business is followed in St. Louis. Along the waste lying between the Iron Mountain and Southern Railroad and the Mississippi River, and below the thickly populated portion of the city a number, of small cabins are located. The business of the occupants of these huts is looking for floaters. Nearly every week one or two bodies float down the river and are caught by these men. Yesterday afternoon a reporter visited one of these huts. It was a little patched shed, a few blocks north of the Arsenal. The water washed the bank at the bottom of the inclosure about the house. An old skiff filled with nets and jugs was tied up to the fence. A vicious half-breed mastiff and St. Bernard dog guarded the premises from trespassers, and after considerable calling by the reporter and a great deal of barking by the dog, a small, swarthy Frenchman came to the gate in anything but a sociable mood.

"Do you catch floaters?" inquired the reporter.

"Yes, sir," replied the man, with a well lengthened French accent.

The dog was sent to his kennel and the reporter escorted into the only room in the cabin. A bed held together with ropes and wire, a rusty old stove, innocent of polish, a few broken chairs, a dilapidated table, a much faded photograph, and some empty soap boxes, were the only ojects in the room. It now became necessary for the visitor to explain his mission, as the wary proprietor seemed suspicious. The reporter tore a leaf from his note-book and on it wrote an accurate description of an imaginary drowned man and gave it to the Frenchman with a promise of $50 reward for finding the body. This was sufficient, and in a few minutes a conversation was opened up. "It is a funny way to make a living," said the man, "but we must make money some way or another to live, and I would sooner make my money this way than to work hard for so much a day in the hot sun or on the cold winter days."

"Do you do nothing but catch floaters?"

"No. I catch drift wood and logs, and a great deal of valuable stuff comes down the river from the city and from up the river. The current strikes the Missouri shore near Bissell's Point, and these things go into the middle of the stream and come back to this side down here. Of course my business is looking for floaters. When I am not working about my nets or something else, I sit at this window, and can see anything that goes down the current. In a few minutes I can have the body tied to my skiff and landed here. Then I notify the police and they notify the Coroner, and then I get my fee, which is only $1 50 now. It used to be $3. If there is $10 or $25 or $50 reward I get that, and that is a good week's work."

"How long have you been in the business?"

"My wife died seven years ago. There is her picture on the wall, and now myself and my son, Amant Duprez, who is eleven years old, live here. We do not have any rent to pay, and we catch a great many floaters, and have all the wood we want to burn and catch fish enough, and we do not have great expenses. In nine years I guess I have found over a hundred floaters, children and little babies, and men and women."

"A great many persons who are drowned do not come to the surface?" cautiously remarked the visitor.

"Oh, they all come up, but the Coroner don't hear of all of them."

"What, then, becomes of them?"

"Well, they are taken care of by somebody who is interested in the matter," and here the talkative spirit that showed itself in the opening of the conversation suddenly ceased, and the speaker showed an unwillingness to answer any more than was directly asked. The imaginary floater that secured the interview was again called into play. The reporter, after being assured that there was no one around, told Duprez that he wanted the first notification of the finding of the body and that a compliance with this wish would secure an additional $200 reward.

"Oh, I don't like to do that kind of business. I don't know what should happen if I was found out by the police, but I think it would be a serious thing. That is how murders are hidden. The murdered man is thrown into the river and then some one catches the body, and without knowing anything more about it than the money he gets he puts it away where it will never be found. Then the papers have a great deal about it, and it soon blows over and nothing more is heard. The man that hides up a crime like this is just as much a murderer as the one that does the killing. I am content to make the fee and rewards for catching bodies, and I don't want to go into anything that will get me into trouble."

With another admonition concerning the above mentioned body, the reporter left.

LORD MOUNTMORRES.

The Last Landlord Victim of Irish Vengeance and Spite.

From the New York Times.

The murder of Lord Mountmorres took place precisely in the district where the author of that excellent story "Castle Daly," which excited so much interest a few years ago, lays the scene of a similar crime. Ebor Hall, as the unfortunate nobleman's seat is called, is situated on a strip of land forming the northern shore of Lough Corrib and the southern of Lough Mask. A subterraneous communication between these lakes serves as an escape for the waters of Lough Mask, which, after passing through a series of caverns, rise again near the town of Cong, which is situated on an island formed by the several openings from the subterranean river. The chief of these openings rises in a great body from a depth of 73 feet, forming a powerful eddy which turns two large mills. The approaches are over three bridges. In the town are vestiges of the Abbey where Roderic O'Connor spent the last 15 years of his life. He was the last native King of all Ireland. The chief owner of the district is Lord Ardilaun, whose father, Sir Benjamin Guinness, bought up nearly 20,000 acres of the encumbered estate of a nobleman and has made it one of the best cared for properties in the world. Lord Mountmorres appears by the Parliamentary land report to have owned altogether in Ireland only 300 acres, which returned £121 a year. He represents that impecunious class of nobles which have served to bring ridicule to the Irish peerage. They were the result of the easy way in which men were made Irish peers in the last century. It is notorious that when George III. refused to permit a man's carriage to drive down a certain private road in London, he added: "But I'll make him an Irish peer, if he pleases," and he did please. A good many men accepted the honor with the hope, which sometimes proved well founded, that it would prove a stepping-stone to the English peerage. Property in Galway has since 1850 changed hands more than anywhere else in Ireland. The great Eyre estate is now chiefly owned by a Scotchman, Mr. Pollox, who has over 29,000 acres. The largest property is that of Mr. Richard Berridge, of London. It appears by the list of addresses of Galway proprietors that a large proportion reside outside of the county, some in other parts of Ireland, some in England. The county contains 1,235 land-owners, and a million and a half acres. The recent murder is scarcely likely to encourage other landords to reside, more especially in view of the terror pervading Ebor Hall, as described in a telegram yesterday, in which it is asserted that the undertakers, men from Galway, were afraid to perform their duties toward the dead, and that Lady Mountmorres did not dare to leave the house and was apprehensive of the funeral cortege being molested. The poor lady probably calls to mind that this happened in the case of Sir J. Judkin-Fitzgerald some years ago, when the coffin had to be taken back to the house, and was ultimately interred at night, under a strong guard of constables, who watched it for days afterward. In all this we see in Ireland to-day the sins of the fathers visited upon the children unto the third and fourth generations. The grandson pays the penalty for his grandfather's oppression, profligacy and utter lack of a sense of duty. If any one wishes to see an explanation of what is happening to-day, let him read Arthur Young's "Tour in Ireland" a century ago.

Effect of Light Literature.

Philadelphia Cor. Chicago Times.

Recently the book in which a record of missing people is keep by Detective Houser at the Central police office, has blossomed out with an unusual list of names of absentees, among whom the juvenile element has had a decided preponderance. An accidental discovery to-day, made by a father who was searching for his lost boy, may furnish a key to some of the mysterious disappearances. On September 28 Johnny O'Brien, ten years old, departed from his father's house, No. 322 German street. The search for him by his father was continued for three days. This morning he went down upon the "lots", on Second street, below Mifflin street. This place has a growth of weeds almost as high as a man's head, rendering a search for anything except stench-giving vegetation rather a toilsome job. Mr. O'Brien, after stumbling around for a couple of hours, saw a thin spire of smoke ascending from among the weeds. He went to the spot and disvovered that quite a large shed or shanty had been constructed from driftwood and plundered barrels and boxes by a party of boys numbering about a dozen, and that under this shelter they had been passing a gypsey life all summer. Sitting around a fire on which soup was cooking and potatoes were roasting were the dozen lads of this juvenile free company, who were enjoying themselves as hilariously as Robin Hood and his merry men. Mr. O'Brien sought out of the party his own son, who was acting his part of free rover as well as any of the rest, and marched him away towards home. Some of the larger lads, who were about 16 years old, tried to dissuade young O'Brien from going with his father, but the parent held on to him. It appears from late revelations made by the youngster that the more youthful members of the bushwhackers were under the dominion of the older ones, who made them scout around for eatables and fuel, and steal the needed provender from store fronts when begging expeditions would not produce anything. Some of the boys had been there all summer. They played cards, told stories and split wood to while away the time, the older ones putting all the drudgery upon their younger companions. The Second District police were advised of the existence of the band by the Chief of Police.

A Lawyer's Conscience.

From the New York Herald.

One cannot wonder that there was extraordinary astonishment in the Passaic County (N. J.) Court Tuesday morning, when a prominent lawyer arose and asked forgiveness of the bench and bar for certain alleged offenses, for it was the first case on record of a lawyer admitting himself to be in the wrong. He accused himself of not having at all times gracefully and obediently accepted the rulings of the Court, whereas every lawyer knows that when the Court rules against him it is because the Court is an old idiot, who never learned the first principles of law. He also declared that in past days he had not been as courteous to his brethren of the Bar as he might have been, just as if courtesy to one's opponent was common among lawyers. Strangest of all, however, the remorseful member declared that he had made an exorbitant charge for drawing a will. This settled the question. All the rest might might be the result of manliness asserting its supremacy over quick temper, for under such circumstances a noble nature might transgress the custom of the Bar by exceeding the extreme of honor, but when it came to confessing exorbitant charging there was only one thought possible—the man must be crazy. No lawyer in full possession of his senses would ever make such a confession, even if broken on the wheel.

Elephants in a Funeral Procession.

From the Charlotte (N. C.) Observer.

The funeral cortege which followed to the cemetery yesterday afternoon the remains of John King, the keeper of animals in Robinson's circus, who was killed yesterday by the elephant Chief, was a somewhat remarkable spectacle. The body lay in a magnificent casket, and was carried to the graveyard in a hearse to which were attached four handsome white horses. Close upon the hearse followed the two pet elephants of the dead keeper, Mary and The Boy, whose stately tread in perfect time with the dirge which the band was playing seemed to indicate that the intelligent animals felt the solemnity of the occasion. The funeral ceremonies took place in the Catholic Church, and the scene there was likewise solemn and impressive. The performers and laborers, fresh from the shouts and glare of the circus, in their rough every day clothes, but with faces respectfully cleared of the dust and paint of the arena, were all present.

A Maine Cat Utilized.

From the Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

A gentleman in the southern section of the city has a new kind of a squirrel-capturing contrivance. As a gentleman was wandering through the woods in quest of squirrels, he saw approaching another gentleman with something in his arms, which at first he took to be a baby, and as he seemed to be working cautiously along, peeping into every tree he came to, he began to think he might possibly be about to witness a "mysterious disappearance" or something of that sort; but all at once the gentleman stoops down and away scampers his bundle, up a tree it goes with lightning rapidity, makes a jump and returns. Our informant hastens to see what the thing could be, and found a cat with a squirrel. To the inquiry "What are you doing with that cat?" the answer was, "Catching squirrels; he's my gun, trap, and dog, and we catch all the squirrels we come across."

Married Unintentionally.

Syracuse (N. Y.) Cor. Chicago Times.

The village of Fulton, a few miles distant from Syracuse, is just now greatly excited by the discovery that one of its fairest daughters has recently been clandestinely married to Prof. Wesley A. Arnold, a Chicago music-teacher, who formerly resided in this city. The name of the young girl is Sarah Darrow, and she is the daughter of a wealthy Fulton family. The fact that she became Mrs. Arnold was not disclosed until to-day, when she sorrowingly confessed it. The girl professes not to love Arnold, who, it is said, used improper means to gain a wife. He was in with a lady friend of Miss Darrow's, and, between them, the latter was induced to go riding in a carriage in which Arnold afterward embarked. The party was driven to a neighboring town, and the knot tied. Mrs. Arnold returned home, but was down-hearted and sullen. To-day she related the occasion of her sorrow. Arnold has disappeared.

THE PRIMITIVE MAN.

On the coasts that incessantly freeze,
With his stones and his bones and his bows:
On luxuriant tropical leas,
Where the summer eternally glows,
He is found and his habits disclose
(Let theology say what she can)
That he lived in the long, long ago,
'Twas the manner of Primitive Man!
From a status like that of the Crees,
Our society's fabric arose,
Develop'd, evolved, if you please;
But deluded chronologists chose,
In a fancied accordance with Moses, 4000 B. C. for the span
When he rushed on the world and its woes—
'Twas the manner of Primitive Man!

JOHN MCENNIS.

THE LAWYERS' LAMENT.

Startling Decrease of Litigation in the Courts.

What the Attorneys Say in Regard to Their Decreasing Practice.

For some time past it has been evident to the members of the legal profession in this city that the outlook, as far as business was concerned, during the coming term, was not by any means encouraging, but on the other hand the oppposite. It was freely circulated that the number of cases on the docket of the Circuit Court was not more than half as large as that of last year, and that the practice of several of the most prominent law firms in this city had been steadily decreasing for more than a year past. In consequence of these rumors and statements a POST-DISPATCH reporter became desirous of investigating whether they were true and what the causes where which led to such a condition of affairs. Accordingly he called upon some of the best known lawyers and endeavored to obtain from them an expression of their views on the subject. The first gentleman visited was

MR. EDMUND T. ALLEN.

He said after the reporter had stated the purpose of his call that he had not examined the docket closely and was therefore not in a position to express an opinion in reference to the matter. Personally he had all the business he could control upon his hands. He thought that the outlook was not so bad as it had appeared to be made out.

MR. JOHN H. KRUM

said that there had no doubt been a large falling off in the legal business.

"Is it as large as 50 per cent?" queried the POST DISPATCH man.

"Well, no. But I think I am safe in saying that it has fallen off at least one-third since this time last year."

"What is the cause of this decrease?"

"It is principally owing to the fact as far as I can judge that merchants have not yet been long enough in business since the era of prosperity has set in all over the country to have become entangled as yet in litigation." Besides this fact Mr. Krum thought that the manner in which business was being conducted now as compared with the extensive credit system followed previous to the panic had considerable to do with the present poorness of law business.

MR. H. HAEUSSLER.

Mr. Haeussler, of the firm of Broadhead, Slayback & Haeussler, said: "There has been a great falling off in business for the last two years, owing to the fact that business is now being conducted on a different basis—the basis mainly of cash. Besides that, the bankrupt law did away with a tremendous amount of claims; and again, the courts have to a great extent sat down upon suits for damages. Why! if a man stubbed his toe or hurt his thumb he immediately brought a suit against the railway corporation, and if the railroad company had the slightest fear of their being held liable, the case was immediately compromised, although if it had come to a trial the company might have won."

Mr. Haeussler did not think that at present St. Louis was a very healthy place for a young limb of the law to settle down in. On the contrary he would advise him to go to some small town and grow up with it.

"About how many lawyers are there in practice in this city?"

"I should say from five to seven hundred, and how some of them live would astonish the public."

MR. FINKELNBURG,

of Finkelnburg & Rassieur, said that he understood from the Clerk of the Circuit Court that there were about 600 cases on the docket as against 800 last year, a decrease of about one-fourth. The falling off had been gradual and was to some extent, probably, owing to the growing prosperity of the country and consequent lack of litigation. However, St. Louis was a growing city and business was bound to return to it. He thought that there was a good field here for a young lawyer, but he should have to be able to hold out for a time and be industrious.

MR. LUBKE,

of Hitchcock, Lubke & Player, said: "Yes, I really believe there has been a falling off of business to the extent of 50 per cent, which has been caused by the fact that business people at present have something else to do besides becoming involved in litigation. Money is coming in to them now, and they are looking after it."

MR. G. VAN WAGONER.

who for years has been connected with railroad corporations, expressed his views on the question at some length. "There is no doubt," said he, but that the coming winter will be one of the dullest I have ever seen since I came to St. Louis. The causes tending to create this condition of matters are very numerous—the bankrupt law, which cleaned out a great number of claims, the strictness which the courts now display in dealing with suits for damages, the new era of prosperity which is dawning upon the whole country, and last, but not least, the tardiness with which suits are carried to a culmination in the courts. Merchants now are afraid to bring suits when they are told that their cases may be two or sometimes three years in litigation before a decision is arrived at. Sooner than go to the bother and expense they let the whole thing slide or else compromise."

Elephants on a Bender.

From the San Francisco Post.

An exciting but luckily harmless incident, which happened to W. W. Cole's circus, now en route for this city, is thus detailed by W. R. Haydn, the managing advance agent. In going from Nevada to Colfax a part of the circus went by rail, a distance of seventeen miles, while another part went across the country, which is only twelve miles. In the latter body were the elephants, three of which got loose and went on a pasear on their own account. Three days elapsed before they were recaptured, though their tracks were closely followed by men on horseback. During their pedestrian jamboree they went through an Indian camp at night, but never woke up a single soul; tore up fences, went through orchards, consumed quantities of fruit, and, as far as known, were not seen by any one in the district, which is well settled up. Uprooted fruit trees testified to their love of fun, and the number of fences which had to be rebuilt after their "bender" is incalculable. They appear to have been good-natured all the time, but to have traveled mostly at night and to have rested during the day in the woods.
